INSURGENTS
OPEN DRIVE
OF MADRID

Attack Made on Almadrones in Guadalajara Region in Attempt to Complete Rebel Encirclement of Besieged City.

FASCISTS SHELL
CAPITAL SUBURB

Manzanares River Bridge, Only Access to University City by Franco Army, Mined and Destroyed by Defenders.

MADRID, March 8.—Insurgents began a sharp attack today on Almadrones, in the upper Guadalajara region northeast of Madrid, apparently in an effort to encircle this besieged city from a new direction.

Gen. Jose Miaja, commander of the Government forces in the Madrid area, said his troops were "resisting magnificently."

An insurgent attack in force had been predicted by defense officers. Gen. Miaja said he thought the insurgent thrust at Almadrones was only the first of several that would be launched by Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent forces in an effort to sever another Madrid communication line.

Government forces, he said, were prepared to meet the attack throughout the province northeast of Madrid.

Apparent Rebel Strategy. The charge against Almadrones was the fifth of considerable intensity in recent weeks. Its object, apparently, was to drive southward through the town to the highway which traverses Guadalajara Province, then strike at the city of Guadalajara, about 32 miles northwest of the capital.

Should such a strategy succeed, the insurgent besiegers would move closer to Madrid on its northeast side than they have been at any time during the civil war.

The Guadalajara road is a most vital outlet for Madrid, virtually its last link with the outside world if the insurgents cut the Valencia road southeast from the capital.

However, there is little Government military traffic over the Guadalajara road, most of it taking the direct Valencia route.

Shelling of Madrid Suburb. Insurgent artillery shells killed and wounded several persons in the outlying Madrid district of El Rastro today.

Insurgent battalions were concentrated in the Jarama region, southeast of the capital, and on the Coruna road, northwest of Madrid. Rebels at both points were heavily shelled by the Government yesterday.

Government defenses were centered in the Jarama region, holding the key to the Valencia highway, and on El Pardo sector, which keeps the enemy from the roads northwest to the Guadarrama front.

The insurgents have been prevented thus far, official Government reports say, from re-establishing communication between El Pardo sector and the Aravaca and University City region after a vital bridge was blown up by a Government mine. The bridge, built by the insurgents north of Puerta de Hierro, was the only insurgent access into University City.

Insurgent aircraft, flying four bi-motored bombers and 20 escort planes, bombed the town of Jilfrutes, northeast of the capital.

Ships Reported Captured. Dispatches from Lisbon, Portugal, said the insurgent General, Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, speaking over the Sevilla radio station, asserted insurgents captured six Government ships in the Mediterranean yesterday. Four travelers and two steamers, loaded with ammunition and volunteers, comprised the group, the general stated.

In Madrid, police engaged in a roundup of Carlists—extreme Rightists—and said they discovered a book containing names and details of a Carlist militia throughout Spain. Numerous suspects were arrested.

Dispatches from Valencia announced insurgent planes coming from the direction of Majorca, bombed Pozul and Farnaca, villages north of Valencia, causing three casualties, but little damage. Three bi-motored insurgent planes bombed

BRITISH SHIP FIRED ON,
SINKING IN BAY OF DISCAY

Five Destroyers Go to Aid of Adda, Passenger Vessel, Which Sent Out SOS.

LONDON, March 8.—Four British destroyers steamed at forced draft through the Bay of Biscay today to the point where the British Motorship Adda sent out an SOS, reporting it had been bombed and was sinking. The Adda is a vessel of 7516 gross tons.

One version of the SOS said the ship reported it was being raked from fore to aft by fire from "an unidentified warship."

"Fire aboard—sinking" said the message picked up by Lloyd's. The position given was roughly about 140 miles out in the bay.

Earlier messages said the fire was still burning aboard the ship and that "passengers"—the number unstated—were aboard. The ship was hit below the headline.

One message read: "We are lost—fire aboard—there are passengers—we ask help!"

ONLY $59,900 LEFT TO PAY
$3,912,000 BOND ISSUE

Final Order Entered in Liquidation of Kansas City Interurban Lines.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 8.—Only $59,900 was left today to pay holders of bonds valued on their face at $3,912,548 when Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis entered his final decree in liquidating the affairs of the Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Railway Co.

The company, founded between 1911 and 1913 to operate electric interurban lines between Kansas City, St. Joseph and Excelsior Springs, quit business in 1934.

After all property of the road had been sold there remained $198,225. Judge Otis held $183,325 of that to pay the first mortgage, leaving $15,900 to pay on bonds theoretically valued at $3,912,548, plus 6 per cent interest from July 5, 1934.

The Chase National Bank of New York is trustee of the road.

STANDARD OIL OF OHIO RAISES
WAGES FOR 4000 EMPLOYEES

Increases Include Rise of 5 Pct. for 1900 Receiving Less Than $150 a Month.

CLEVELAND, O., March 8.—Standard Oil of Ohio announced today wage increases totaling $800,000 among its 4000 employees.

The increases include a rise of 5 per cent for 1600 workers receiving less than $150 a month in the refining and bulk station department, including truck drivers, draymen and other laborers.

In the refining department 1500 men will receive a 2 increase of 10 cents an hour over a present minimum of 60 cents an hour.

The 978 workers in company owned and operated filling stations will get a flat increase of 5 per cent.

YOUNGSTOWN SHEET & TUBE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 8.—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. announced today that it had granted a 5 per cent wage increase to its 10,000 employees.

The increase was granted by Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation to members of its employee representative plan, President Frank Purnell announced today.

Purnell said the increase was negotiated last Saturday with employee representatives. All salaries will receive "adjustments commensurate with the advance granted the wage-earners."

ST. LOUIS BURNS
AGENCY RECORDS
TORN TO BITS

Scraps, Pieced Together by Senate Investigators, Prove to Be Reports of Operatives.

DISCOVERED AFTER
SUBPENA WAS SERVED

Against Instructions, Office Asserts—Brothers, Who Run Company, Say Labor Spying Pays.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Evidence gleaned from the waste paper bins in the Railway Exchange Building, and produced today before the La Follette investigating committee, showed that records of St. Louis branch of the William J. Burns Detective Agency were destroyed in violation of a Senate subpoena. Such action is punishable as contempt.

The material evidence consisted of hundreds of fragments of torn paper, which when pieced together by committee investigators, proved to be reports by Burns operatives covering their activities in behalf of more than 12 St. Louis commercial firms, in connection with labor disputes. Their services included undercover work, "surveillance," "investigation," and like activities.

St. Louis Clients. As revealed by the mutilated reports, the clients for whom the work had been performed were: Chevrolet Motor Co., Angelica Jackson Co., Premium Cap Co., Columbia Can Co., Carter Carburetor Co., St. Louis Laundry Board of Trade, International Furniture Co., Executive Oil Co., White Hardware Co., Eberhart Co., A. B. C. Distributing Co. and Atlas Towel Co. There were two others whose names did not appear on the reconstructed reports.

In an affidavit read by Chairman La Follette, Leonard Bajork, a committee investigator, told how he obtained the waste paper from the basement of the Railway Exchange Building, after it had been removed from the Burns branch office last August. That was after the agency had been served with a subpoena calling for all records and documents pertaining to industrial espionage.

Raymond J. Burns and W. Sherman Burns, heads of the agency bearing their father's name, were on the witness stand when the evidence was presented. They had previously testified that all such records in the agency's possession when the subpoena was served had been turned over to the committee.

As a matter of fact, virtually no reports were turned over. Asked to explain the act of the St. Louis office, Sherman Burns replied:

"All I can say is that I don't know why they did it. It was contrary to our instructions."

The testimony of the Burns brothers showed that spying on labor and supplying guards for strike duty is a highly profitable business for private detective agencies that sell such service.

In some instances it produces more than half of their profits, although the witnesses said that was not true of the Burns agency.

Because of its lucrative character, competition for this business is keen, and agency managers resort to extraordinary methods to get it. In particular, they are instructed to "work on" employees by picturing the "dangers of Communism."

The "services" supplied them are listed as "undercover work," "surveillance," "investigation," "guards," etc., and today's evidence showed that St. Louis has been a fertile field in recent years. Raymond and Sherman Burns, heads of the agency which bears their father's name, denied, however, that they incited or prolonged industrial strife in order to make business for their firm. They said that would be "unethical."

The Burns Agency was employed during the oil cases to shadow a jury before which Harry Sinclair was being tried. Sinclair and executive of the agency were pronounced guilty of contempt of court.

Profits $45,000 in One Strike. Supplying guards and undercover men in strikes and other labor disputes is one of the most lucrative activities of private detective agencies, the Burns brothers agreed. Overhead is very low, and charges are comparatively high.

During the elevator and building strike in New York City last year, the agency had 100 clients. It charged them for guards, during March, $53,400, on which the gross profit was more than $45,000.

During the Remington Rand strike last year, it charged that

ANTI-RIVERFRONT
MEMORIAL MEN
LOSE ON APPEAL

District of Columbia Judges Refuse to Grant Permanent Injunction Against St. Louis Project.

ON TECHNICALITY,
NOT ON THE MERITS

City Should Have Been Made Defendant—Property Owners to Carry Fight to Supreme Court.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg., WASHINGTON, March 8.—In a decision based solely on a technical defect in the suit, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals today refused to interfere with an order of the district court in which 37 St. Louis property-owners were denied a preliminary injunction against the proposed Jefferson Memorial on the St. Louis river front.

The effect of the decision is to vacate a temporary restraining order against the memorial project in force pending preparation of the appeal, and which the Court of Appeals granted last Aug. 17 after the petitioners had appealed to it from the order of the lower court; but if the petitioners take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, as is their right, the Court of Appeals could keep the temporary injunction in force pending preparation of the appeal, and the Supreme Court could continue it pending final decision.

Further Appeal Likely. Edmund M. Toland, Washington counsel for the petitioners, said today: "We are going to the Supreme Court." He said an appeal would be filed within two or three weeks, although 90 days is allowed for filing.

Officials of the land division of the Department of Justice were said to be ready to proceed with condemnation or purchase of the 37 city blocks in the memorial area unless the temporary injunction is continued pending appeal.

Failure of the petitioners to name the City of St. Louis as a party to the suit was the point on which the Court of Appeals decided the case, the court holding "in a unanimous opinion that the City was an indispensable party to the proceeding."

This, the court said, made it unnecessary to consider objections raised as to the constitutionality of various measures and acts through which authority to construct the memorial has been asserted. Thus there has been no hearing on the merits of the issue.

While this is an appeal from an order denying an application for a preliminary injunction, the opinion said, "it is clear to us that the lower court cannot proceed further in the absence of the City of St. Louis."

This was taken to indicate that the defect of the suit might be cured by amendment of the petition to include the City as a party, but practically this would be of no effect unless a restraining order to continue while the litigation is pending could be obtained from the United States Supreme Court, for otherwise the project might be completed before the case could be heard on its merits.

Defendants in Suit. The injunction suit was filed against Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, individually and as the Government, and against the department which would be administered: Arno B. Cammerer, individually and as director of the National Park Service, a division of the Department of the Interior, and Henry Morgenthau Jr., as Secretary of the Treasury.

It sought to restrain these officials from proceeding with the memorial project and from using for that purpose any of the $9,000,000 which President Roosevelt by an executive order under the stated authority of Historic Sites Act had allocated for the memorial. The $9,000,000 fund included $4,750,000 from Federal appropriations available to the President, and $2,250,000 of St. Louis bond issue funds which have been paid over by the city of St. Louis to the Government.

Constitutionality Challenged. The petitioners attacked the constitutionality of the Historic Sites Act, alleging that under this act the Government funds would be used for the local welfare and benefit of the City of St. Louis rather than for national purposes. They asserted also that those sections of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the Emergency Relief Act under which the President asserted

CIO UNION STRIKES

ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Organization, Which Claims as Members Majority of 2000 Employees, Demands Recognition.

MOST OF STRIKERS

To Receive Food by Windows if Necessary—Leader Speaks at Meeting Across Street.

Union employees of the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. went on strike at noon today for recognition of their organization, Local 1102, United Electrical and Radio Workers' Union of America, which claims to represent the majority of the 2000 men and women workers.

The union, affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, is seeking to organize 12,000 employees in more than 20 St. Louis electrical manufacturing plants.

The majority of the strikers walked out of the company's factories at Twentieth street and Washington avenue and Twenty-first street and Lucas avenue, leaving 300 of their number on a stay-in strike at the Twentieth and Washington plant. The latter waved from open windows to their fellow-strikers outside and were cheered in return.

William Senter, CIO organizer, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that preparations were being made to send food to the stay-in strikers from a neighborhood restaurant.

"If this company refuses to let us take the food in we will hold it up through windows," Senter said.

Senter said, planned to remain in the plant until the strike was settled, would need but little bedding as there was plenty of packing material in which they could sleep.

Work Is Halted. Production was halted in both plants by the strike. The company has a warehouse at Theresa and Shottelauer avenues, where eight employees were instructed to join the walkout. L. G. Rowe, comptroller of the company, told reporters the management had no statement this afternoon.

The outsize strikers from the Twentieth and Washington plant assembled on "hacks" lot across street from the factory and were addressed by Senter, who asked them to "do honor to the union." "Co-operate with your leaders and avoid fights and trouble," the speaker told the assembled men and women. Senter added, however, that strikers would be joined by sympathizers "from the auto workers and the steel workers, who know how to handle a situation if one comes up."

Long Picket Line Formed. Following Senter's address, a long picket line was formed on the Washington avenue side of the factory. Pickets also patrolled the sidewalks outside the Twenty-first street and Lucas avenue factory, and the company's general offices, at 1224 Washington avenue. Picketing will continue day and night, strike leaders said.

Authority for the strike was voted by the workers at a meeting yesterday at Carpenters' Hall, where the union executive committee was empowered to call a cessation of work at an opportune time.

Senter and Robert Logsdon, union recording secretary, called this morning on Joseph Newman, company president, and requested a conference on recognition of the union as the collective bargaining agency, and other demands. Newman informed them, Senter related, that the company proposed to maintain its present labor policy, that there was an organization of employees and that he had nothing further to say. Word to go on strike was subsequently circulated through the 38 manufacturing departments.

Senter told reporters he had tried for 10 days to get in touch with Newman and had sent the company president requests for conferences last week without result.

Calls It Company Union. The employees' organization to which Newman referred was termed a "company union" by Senter. It is known as the Emerson Electric Representative Plan. The president of the organization, Frank Schlemmer, a toolmaker, is a member of the CIO union and is one of the stay-in strikers according to Senter. Oscar Debus, president of Local 1102, is secretary of the company union.

Union demands include a closed shop.

KATTELMAN'S APPEAL
DENIED; BACK TO JAIL

U. S. Circuit Court Holds Bankrupt Broker Has Not Purged Self of Contempt.

Harold J. Katteman, bankrupt stock broker under indictment on six felony charges growing out of the collapse of his business, lost his appeal today from an order by United States District Judge George H. Moore committing him to jail for failure to turn over assets of his company, including $39,205 cash.

An opinion by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, filed here, affirmed Judge Moore's order. It was written by Judge Charles E. Paris, Judges Archibald K. Gardner and Seth Thomas concurring.

Katteman, the appellate court held, had not purged himself of contempt. Hence, he must surrender himself to the United States Marshal for return to jail, after filing of the mandate. He has been at liberty on bond pending the appeal.

The appellate court opinion said that Katteman had had opportunity in the original hearing, after entry of Judge Moore's order calling for the assets, to explain what had become of them, but that he failed to do so although Judge Moore conducted a three-day hearing.

"His subsequent explanation that he had paid this money to his wife and sister-in-law, Miss Mildred Logeman, evidently was considered by the Court but not credited," the opinion added.

Costs of the appeal were assessed against Katteman. The amount Katteman was imprisoned for contempt of court for almost eight months, until last Sept. 10, being confined at first at Bowling Green, Mo., and later in St. Louis. He has pleaded that he was suffering from tuberculosis.

'Stay-in' Ties Up Hudson Works While Negotiations Are On—Four Chevrolet Divisions at Flint Closed Temporarily.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., March 8.—Strikes were called this afternoon in all major Detroit factories of the Chrysler Corporation, which employs 59,000 of its 67,000 workers in its nine plants here. Earlier 8500 of the 10,000 employees of the Hudson Motor Co. began a "stay-in" strike, closing several Detroit plants.

The Chrysler strike was announced by Richard T. Frank, chairman, organizational director of the United Automobile Workers of America, following the corporation's refusal to recognize the union as the sole collective bargaining agent in its plants. It affects the Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler plants.

Many of the strikers remained in the factories. Police permitted other workers to leave, but prevented anyone from entering.

Strikers were in control of the gates at the Plymouth plant. They said 85 per cent of the workers there belong to the union. At the Dodge truck division strikers ushered non-union employees from the plant. They claimed a membership of 90 per cent.

As a result of the Chrysler strike, the Mack avenue plant and part of the Melrum avenue plant of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. were closed this afternoon, throwing 4500 men out of work. Briggs manufactures bodies for Chrysler.

Chevrolet Workers Return. Earlier today a strike in the motor assembly division of the Chevrolet Motor Co. at Flint closed four plants there, affecting 4400 men, but the strikers later agreed to return to work, pending negotiation of their grievances with the company.

A little later more than 400 employees of the press room department of the Fisher Body Plant No. 1 at Flint began a "sit-down" strike for immediate wage increases. Plant No. 1 was one of those held more than six weeks by "stay-in" strikers during the general strikes against General Motors.

Meanwhile 65 members of the Society of Design Engineers employed in the body engineering department of the Packard Motor Co. here were conducting a "sit-down" strike.

Chrysler factories here are the Chrysler Highland Park plant, which covers 53 acres; the Chrysler Jefferson avenue plant, the Chrysler Kew-Forest plant, the Dodge Brox plant, the Plymouth plant, the Dodge forge plant, the De Soto plant, the Dodge truck plant and the Chrysler motor parts plant. The union last week demanded sole recognition. The company's refusal was announced at this morning's session of Chrysler and union conferees.

Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., and John Brophy, a director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, joined the negotiations in progress between the union and Chrysler representatives this afternoon.

Company Officials' Statement. B. E. Hutchinson, Chrysler vice president, charged in a statement this afternoon that the union in demanding sole bargaining privileges was seeking to "force" all our employees to go with the union or go out of our employ."

"The essence of the sole bargaining agency demand," he said, "is that Chrysler Corporation must agree not to bargain with any other group, agency or employee claiming to represent other employees on any matter involving wages, hours

TWO MEN KILLED, 70 HURT; BIG WAVE HITS LINER REX

Vessel Heels Over Under Impact Near Azores and Passengers, at Movie, Are Knocked Down.

PASSENGER, SEAMAN FATALLY INJURED

Entire Crossing From New York So Rough Cabins Were Deserted and Meals Could Not Be Served.

By the Associated Press.
GENOA, Italy, March 8.—Two persons were fatally injured, it was learned today, when the giant liner Rex heeled over under the impact of a mountainous wave near St. Vincent, Azores Islands, during one of the stormiest passages of the Atlantic ever made.

More than 70 passengers were injured when the huge wave, described as "a mountain of water," broke over the vessel last Thursday.

Two American passengers were injured seriously and at least 15 others Americans suffered minor injuries. Those seriously hurt are Joseph James Crowley of Washington, D. C., who was taken to Ruesch Hospital in Naples with a broken thigh and Alfred Sirio, Brooklyn, who was taken to the same hospital, suffering from kidney hemorrhages.

Other Americans hurt. The New York offices of the Italian Line announced today that the injured included Paul Deby, Tartrayton, N. Y.; Joseph Goodman, Troy, N. Y.; Elsie and Helen Woodworth, New York City, and Marguerite Brant, Louis, LaSalle, Rose Contantini, Frank Verilli, Maria Hilco, Aurelia Brill, Lillian Newlander and Irene Tellini, whose addresses were not given. Injuries of all were slight, the line said. The official report of the Italian Line on the accident said:

"During the 12 hours of navigating in most tempestuous seas near St. Vincent in the Azores Islands, a gigantic wave threw the ship off balance.

"Twenty tourists were injured and a member of the crew was killed." Other sources agreed that two persons, a seaman and an Italian passenger, were killed and that as many as 70 persons were hurt during the storm's passage.

Injured Watching Movie. Most of the injured passengers were watching a motion picture in the grand salon when the wall of water struck. The film, "Ave Maria," had just reached its climax with Beniamino Gigli singing the tenor song, "The Rose Tree," when the ship heeled over and the audience was swept across the floor of the salon in a litter of chairs and overturned furniture.

The Italian passenger suffered an abdominal rupture and died two days later. The seaman, who was fatally injured, was thrown against a stanchion and his backbone was broken. Three American doctors among the passengers aided in the attempt to save the sailor's life. An emergency operation was performed, during the storm but lack of facilities aboard for a blood transfusion was understood to have handicapped the effort.

Passengers said the entire crossing was so rough that it was impossible most of the time to remain in the cabins with safety. Great waves swept even the deck.

Meals could not be served in the dining salons, they said, and sandwiches were passed out to passengers as they clung to the handrails of the public rooms.

The Rex docked yesterday after a nine-day crossing from New York.

Passenger's Account. I. S. Powers of Terre Haute, Ind., describing the accident aboard the 51,000-ton liner, said that for "the sea had been somewhat rough but not violent." A great number of first class passengers were in the state lounge room seeing motion pictures.

"Suddenly the boat reeled, struck with immeasurable force. Men and women passengers and ship's attendants went careening about the floor in a heap of scrambled chairs and screaming people.

"After that single blow, the boat righted itself, the passengers picked themselves up and the show went on while attendants carried out the passengers who were seriously injured.

"Friday night we were struck by another blow, but this was not as strong as the first.

"I don't think the injuries to the other passengers were at all serious. There seemed to be cuts on the face and some bruises. I saw some black eyes but no broken arms or legs."

Fieretto Bianco, Painter, Dies. BOLOGNE, Italy, March 8.—Fieretto Bianco, 60 years old, scenic director of the Scala Opera House in Milan and former scenic artist of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, died Saturday. Bianco was awarded first prize for mural painting at the San Francisco Exposition.

Their Firm Thrives on Labor Spy Business

company $28,300 for guards, taking a gross profit of $12,300. Listed in the costs was $30 for the rental of a dictograph. The brothers couldn't recall where or how it was used. The committee made public a list of clients, for whom Burns had done industrial work since 1933, and the nature of the work done for them.

Profits From Labor Troubles. "Isn't it a fact," Senator Thomas asked, "that you profit from industrial strife?" "In the same way that a doctor profits from sickness, or a lawyer from litigation," Sherman Burns answered.

Thomas read from a letter which Sherman Burns sent to W. G. Tobie at the St. Louis office, in December, 1933, in which he pointed out that Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, had addressed a mass meeting in St. Louis, the preceding Sunday, in favor of organization in the clothing industry.

Burns concluded: "With this information, you should be able to get considerable work there."

"As a matter of fact your real service to the client is to help him fight the workers in their efforts to obtain collective bargaining, isn't it?" Thomas asked. "We try to sell information," was the reply.

Employed By Labor Union. "Were you ever employed by a labor union?" "Yes."

"Was your job to spy on another labor union?" "That's right."

"It is in your report for industrial strife to continue?" "We don't try to keep it alive."

"Have you never done that?" "If any of our men did, they went beyond the scope of their instructions."

"Have they ever?" "Yes, but we are not to blame for that."

During the Minneapolis truckmen's strike in 1934, the Burns branch manager there advised caution. Informing his home office that "Minneapolis is the most radical city-governed State in the Union—worse than Wisconsin."

He warned against furnishing guards to employers.

"If one of our men should be injured, we would be liable for compensation," he wrote. "The situation is incredibly bad. Gov. Olson seems to be in full sympathy with the strikers."

In that instance the Burns man was not exaggerating the facts. The late Gov. Floyd Olson told employers that if their refusal to accept Federal mediation led to new outbreaks of violence, it might be necessary for him to place them under "protective arrest."

Keeping Up to Date. One of the regular duties of all Burns branch managers is to read the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, and all local labor publications. From them they are expected to glean tips which will assist them in selling their service to employers. They are also told to "keep in close touch with the regional labor boards, for knowledge of impending strikes."

Raymond Burns said: "Spying, of the sort which we do, is not intended to prevent labor from organizing, but labor thinks it is, because of what they have read in the newspapers."

Consequently, he said, it might be unsafe to disclose the names of operatives engaged in such work.

"Is one of your jobs to ascertain and report to employers the names of radicals and Communists, so they can discharge them?" "We report their names; what the employers do with them is none of our business," Sherman Burns answered.

Communists Defined. "To you, anyone who engages in labor agitation is a Communist, isn't he?" "Radical agitation," Raymond Burns corrected.

"What is a Communist?" "A Communist is a man who believes in Communism."

When Senator Thomas indicated he regarded the answer as less than adequate, Burns added that a Communist is "one who advocates the socialization of industry by direct action."

Insurgents Open Drive Northeast of Spanish Capital

Ciudad Real, south of Madrid, for an hour, this report said.

Rebels Say They Carried Out 100 Air Raids in February. SALAMANCA, Spain, March 8.—Insurgent headquarters at Gen. Francisco Franco announced yesterday that insurgent planes carried out 100 bombardments during February and said Government bombing operations totaled only 28 for the same period.

Only three insurgent planes were lost last month, while Government forces lost 27, the insurgent statement said.

Answering a question, Sherman Burns said he sometimes encountered "sales resistance" among employers to the use of undercover men, although seldom because of "moral scruples," but usually because they fear the employees will discover and resent it.

He also said that an agent of the committee had posed as a Burns operative to the agency's New York office. He couldn't remember the name of the building superintendent who told him that.

"That is a serious charge, and we propose to go to the bottom of it," La Follette declared. "I instruct you to furnish the name of your informant. The committee will get his testimony."

Bare Written Reports. Sherman Burns admitted that, after being served with the committee's subpoena calling for records, the agency ordered that no more written reports be made. Those made earlier were destroyed. The purpose, he said, was "to protect the operatives."

Devo Huston, employed as an operative by the Burns office in Pittsburgh last September and August, testified he was detailed to undercover work in an Oakmont (Pa.) plant, to spy on C. I. O. efforts to unionize the plant. He made written reports. In November he was told by J. M. Ernest, Pittsburgh manager, that his reports had been destroyed, and to make out dummy substitutes for the LaFollette committee.

"I told him I couldn't remember what I had reported," Huston went on, "and he told me he didn't want me to remember. I sat down and wrote out 19 of these dummies in exactly 20 minutes." The dummies told nothing about the character of the work.

"Doesn't this testimony show that your Pittsburgh office not only withheld reports from this committee, but even falsified them?" LaFollette asked. "We couldn't answer that," Raymond Burns replied.

WOMAN RESCUED BY LADDER IN FIRE IN ROOMING HOUSE

Three-Story Building at 1215 North Grand, With Offices Also, Partly Burned.

Fire of undetermined origin partly destroyed a three-story brick building at 1215 North Grand boulevard shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. The building was occupied by William Schmiederer, a chiropractor, who had offices and conducted a rooming house there.

Mrs. Gardner Johnson, who occupied a room on the third floor, was trapped by the flames and rescued by firemen from the roof with a ladder. She was uninjured.

Damage was estimated by firemen at $1000 to the building and $1000 to the contents. Schmiederer said insurance on the furnishings had lapsed recently. The building is owned by Theodore Dubuque, official of a plumbing supply firm, with offices at 3800 Duncan avenue.

APPEALS FROM SENTENCE IN BREMER KIDNAPING DENIED

Court Holds Evidence Sufficient Against Harry Sawyer and Cassius McDonald.

The prison sentences of Harry Sawyer, former Omaha gangster, and Cassius McDonald of Detroit, for conspiracy in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, were affirmed here today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Sawyer, who the Government charged, pointed out the victim, received a life sentence Jan. 24, 1936, and McDonald a 15-year term.

The appeals court stated there was abundant evidence of Sawyer's guilt. Regarding McDonald, the opinion stated, evidence was sufficient to show $50,000 he exchanged through Havana, Cuba, being known by him to be "hot money."

The money was part of the $200,000 ransom paid for Bremer's release. McDonald's association with other defendants in the case was sufficient to warrant the jury's conclusion that he knew from whence the hotness of the money came," the opinion read.

ATTORNEY DECLINES INSURANCE INQUIRY JOB

Hollingsworth Won't Serve and Grover C. James May Be Offered Post.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, March 8.—Former State Senator Frank Hollingsworth of Mexico, Mo., who was tendered an appointment as special counsel for the House Insurance Committee in its proposed investigation of the Missouri fire insurance rate compromise, will not accept the post and the committee will have to seek other counsel, it was learned today.

The appointment may be offered to Grover C. James of Joplin, chairman of the Joplin County Democratic Committee and a former member of the Democratic State Committee. James was a member of a special commission appointed by the Missouri Supreme Court in 1934 which drafted a code of rules, later adopted by the court, for regulation of the practice of law and the disciplining of attorneys guilty of unethical or unprofessional conduct.

James was suggested when a majority of the committee last week selected Hollingsworth, subject to the latter's acceptance. It is not known whether James would accept the post. James' nephew, J. D. James of Joplin, is private secretary to Gov. Stark.

Hollingsworth said he could not accept the appointment because he has cases pending for trial which cannot be postponed, and because of other commitments of his time for clients which would not permit him to devote full time to the proposed inquiry. Hollingsworth has represented the State Bar Advisory Committee in several investigations of law practice and in cases involving disbarment of attorneys.

The insurance investigation was ordered by the House last Feb. 18. So far the committee has selected some clerical employees, but has not set the time for opening the hearings.

GREEN RESIDENCE RULING DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE

Supreme Court Critiques Texas Application Which Will Be Amended and Rejected.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Supreme Court announced today it would deny without prejudice the request of Texas for a determination for taxation purposes of the domicile of Edward H. R. Green, son of the wealthy Herty Green, at the time of his death last summer.

The court found that the Texas motion asking it to take original jurisdiction of the controversy among four states over his residence did not set forth the specific injury that, if other states satisfied their tax claims, an insufficient amount would be left in the estate to satisfy the claims of Texas.

The court complained that Texas has not specified the exact value of the estate or what part of it was in each of the states.

Attorney-General William McCraw of Texas and the commission officials made plans to file an amended motion embodying the suggested motions of the court in a day or two.

GOV. STARK CONSIDERING WILDLIFE APPOINTMENTS

Says He Probably Will Name Four Members of Board Before July 1.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, March 8.—Gov. Stark said today he had started considering appointments for Missouri's new Wildlife Conservation Commission and probably would name the four commissioners before July 1, the date on which the constitutional amendment creating the group becomes effective.

Gov. Stark indicated he would follow the same practice in making the appointments as he has in filling other non-salaried State jobs by passing up applicants.

The Governor said, in a general way, he thought men better qualified for non-salaried State places who did not apply for them.

"Of course, if a man I want on the commission should apply," he added, "it would not mean that I would not consider him."

A sportsman himself, Gov. Stark said recently in St. Louis he felt the policy of the commission—created by the amendment voted on at the general election, last November—would largely determine the success or failure of "the whole program."

EX-JUDGE RITTER FAILS TO GET REVIEW OF OUSTER

U. S. Supreme Court Refuses to Consider Salary Suit of Former Jurist Who Alleged Impeachment was Invalid.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 8.—Halsted L. Ritter lost in the Supreme Court today in his attack on validity of Senate impeachment proceedings which resulted in his removal as a United States District Judge for Southern Florida. The Court refused to pass on a United States Court of Appeals ruling against Ritter, who had sued for salary as a Judge, challenging the Senate action.

Ritter was found guilty last April by the Senate of bringing his court "into scandal and disrepute."

"The decision of the Court of Appeals," said Ritter in his petition, "renders unavailing and ignores the constitutional limitations and restrictions upon the Senate's power of removal of civil officers."

Contrary to the decisions of this Court relating to the established independence of the Federal judiciary."

Ritter argued that the seventh court, under which he was found guilty, was a combination of the same charges of which he had been acquitted by separate judgments, and that "the court of impeachment was without power to render a judgment upon the seventh article."

The Court of Appeals erred, he said, in refusing to determine whether the Senate exceeded the powers conferred by the Constitution. Ritter had brought suit for his salary in the claims court.

RUBBER UNION CONFERENCE WITH FIRESTONE CONTINUES

Effort Made to Adjust Dispute Which Has Closed Factories Leaving 10,000 Idle.

By the Associated Press. AKRON, O., March 8.—Officers of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers of America continued today a conference on the dispute which has closed the Firestone factories and idled 10,000 employees.

A six-hour conference was held yesterday.

S. R. Murphy, Firestone labor superintendent, with other company officers conferred with a union committee headed by L. R. Brown, master, local president, and Allen Haywood, representative of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The union, which announced that its members would not return to work until the union was recognized as sole collective bargaining agent for the 10,000 workers, established no picket lines. The union claims 8000 of the workers as members.

CHICAGO RESTAURANT STRIKE

Thompson's Quickly Had Sit-Down by Picketing Wage Parley.

CHICAGO, March 8.—A promise of higher wages ended a sit-down strike early today of 18 employees who barred the doors of three restaurants of the Thompson chain.

The strike, which began at 1 a. m. in a North Side restaurant and quickly spread to two others, ended at 8 a. m. after John R. Thompson Jr., president of the chain, made an appeal to the strikers to return to work pending a conference on a wage increase.

INDIANA STERILIZATION BILL PASSED

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—The State Senate passed and sent to the Governor today a bill which would include epilepsy and incurable primary and secondary types of feeble-mindedness among the diseases for which superintendents of institutions for the feeble-minded may recommend sterilization. The governing board of each institution would have final authority to order sterilization.

Case of Vacant Lot. Recently, Lang said, a colored man named McMenamy came to the Exchange that he had been unable to get the money for a lot which the firm sold him. That complainant who the Exchange could do nothing about the matter.

The Real Estate Exchange, which has 278 members, subscribes to the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

A placard with the legend "Carefully Drawn" was posted about a month ago from the real estate firm after the Louisville Lawyers Association had been filed and hearing on the matter had been arranged. McMenamy is a lawyer.

Objection to posting the placard, it is alleged, was made by the firm, it would be a violation of regulations forbidding practice of law by corporations. McMenamy as a lawyer would be deemed an unethical advertisement. The hearing never held. The placard was notified that the sign had been down.

Another customer of the St. Louis D. Derrin, 3630 Cass street, today to present a complaint to the Circuit Attorney. He told a Dispatch reporter that he had been trying, since last year, to collect $1000 which he had loaned to a man named Walsh. He had induced him to purchase a house, executed by Walsh, an employee of the firm, and secured by mortgage on property at 3300 Grand boulevard, matured last March, said he exhibited notes on the stationery of the firm which stated that McMenamy had paid the loan. McMenamy's son, a lawyer, had been paid the loan. McMenamy, a son-in-law of the late John McMenamy, the real estate firm, was the death of his father in March, 1933. Derrin told a Dispatch reporter, Walsh had been paid the loan, but at the rate of 6 per cent, he said, he had been unable to collect his principal money.

On inquiry at the City Hall, he had learned that the Fugate River, which was security for the loan, was not been paid for six years. At the Circuit Attorney's office, he said that issuance of a writ would not be considered unless a motion for summary judgment was taken place. McMenamy's son, a lawyer, had been paid the loan. McMenamy, a son-in-law of the late John McMenamy, the real estate firm, was the death of his father in March, 1933. Derrin told a Dispatch reporter, Walsh had been paid the loan, but at the rate of 6 per cent, he said, he had been unable to collect his principal money.

At Liberty on Bond. Walsh and McMenamy's son, who were arrested on charges of fraud, were issued on $1000 bond by Judge F. D. Duer, Jr., of the Circuit Attorney's office. McMenamy's son, a lawyer, had been paid the loan. McMenamy, a son-in-law of the late John McMenamy, the real estate firm, was the death of his father in March, 1933. Five Arrested in Strike of Taxicab Men in Chicago

Drivers Form Union and 700 of Them Approve CIO Affiliation.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Taxicab drivers at a premium in most of Chicago today, with drivers of two major companies in the fourth day of a strike for higher commissions and other concessions.

Five men were arrested yesterday when they were found crossing the streets with blackjacks to lead pipes in their cars. Three of them were cab drivers.

Loop streets were bare of the usual stream of green and yellow cabs, but outlying districts had no taxis. The Yellow Cab Co. had an increasing number of cars being returned to service, and the it was expected service would be normal in 24 hours.

The strikers have perfected organization of the Midwest Taxi Drivers' Union. Joseph Jacob, union attorney, said 700 drivers had approved a hookup with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS AGAINST ROOSEVELT SCHEME

Historian Says It Constitutes the Greatest Crisis Since the Civil War.

NEW YORK, March 8.—James Truslow Adams, American historian and writer, winner of the Pulitzer prize for the best history of the United States, has aligned himself with the opposition to the President's judicial reorganization program.

"I accept membership in the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government," he telegraphed Frank E. Gannett, chairman. "I believe the President's suggestion utterly undemocratic and in view of the general political psychology of the world today to constitute the greatest crisis since the Civil War."

Adams was a member of the Calhoun commission appointed by former President Woodrow Wilson early in the World War and prepared much of the data used in the peace conference.

He is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, of the Massachusetts Historical Society and was appointed to the executive council of the American Historical Association in 1927. His book, "The Founding of New England," won the Pulitzer prize in 1922.

ROCKEFELLER JR. SUGGESTS UNION OF ELEVEN CHURCHES

Proposes Expert Examine Properties and Recommend What Should Be Kept.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., March 8.—John D. Rockefeller Jr. suggested yesterday that the 11 Protestant churches here unite to form a co-operative church center.

He proposed that the churches have an expert go over the church properties, pick out the best and list that which could be discarded.

His proposal was made during a talk at a vespers service at Christ Church, which was founded by Washington Irving.

Referring to the changed viewpoint of men today compared with that of two generations ago, Rockefeller said:

"I would gladly dispense with the telephone and the radio if by so doing the peace and calm of life at a slower pace would be brought back."

"Personally, I would rather have lived in the days of stage coaches than in this day of automobiles and airplanes."

ROOSEVELT GETS LEWIS' PLEDGE FOR COURT FIGHT HELP

CIO Leader and Committee of Non-Partisan League Tell President They Are With Him "to a Man."

ACTION AT MEETING FOLLOWED BY VISIT La Follette in Speech Says Supreme Court Needs Amending — 16 Farm Leaders Back Scheme.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 8.—A committee speaking for the convention of Labor's Non-Partisan League told President Roosevelt today the working people were "with him to a man" in his fight to extend the Supreme Court.

Going to the White House after a meeting at which critics of the Supreme Court were charged uproariously, President George L. Berry, John L. Lewis and other League leaders took with them a resolution unanimously demanding the court legislation to fulfill "the will and needs of the people."

"Our delegates will go back into every Congressional District," they said on leaving Roosevelt, "to see to it that members of Congress are told what the great masses of the people want."

Pledge From Farm Leaders. Sixteen national and state farm organization leaders also pledged their support to the President during the day.

After a call at the executive mansion, the group issued a statement saying progress of the farmer had been "thwarted by the Supreme Court" and no effective substitute had been found for the Agricultural Adjustment Act invalidated by that tribunal.

N. W. Thatcher, spokesman for the farm representatives, handed the statement to reporters. It said: "Farmers, as well as all other citizens, should properly assume that President Roosevelt—re-elected by the greatest majority in history—is generally better informed relative to the affairs and needs of this nation than any other person."

"President Roosevelt has staunchly supported and advocated all farm legislation upon which agriculture could come in common agreement. Agriculture's greatest progress has been thwarted by the Supreme Court and we have found no effective substitute for that lost legislation."

"We believe in the President's ability and determination to preserve our democracy, and at the same time, improve the welfare of the masses. We reaffirm our faith in his leadership and will give him our full support."

Moley Says Court Plan Should Have Been 1936 Election Issue

Assails Roosevelt for Not Taking People Into His Confidence—Judge Pecora Calls Court "Constitutional Convention."

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 8.—The President's Supreme Court proposal was discussed by Raymond Moley, a former member of the Roosevelt "brain trust," and Judge Ferdinand Pecora in a joint radio appearance last night.

Moley, now an editor, said that while he believed the Court had been "unduly conservative in some instances," a constitutional amendment should be the means of enlarging the Federal power to deal with economic problems.

Not specifically mentioning Mr. Roosevelt, he said that in 1935 he had "begged" Democratic leaders to put an amendment to the people but that "the issue was dropped. Was there not an election in the offing?"

"Afraid to Submit Amendment." "And it seems to me," he added, "that the charge of defeatism, hysteria, reaction and cowardice comes with poor grace from those who were afraid to submit a constitutional amendment to the people two years ago and who did not take the public into their confidence in the year 1936—the one year when the people were permitted a voice in government."

"That is not democracy; it is not even the pretense of democracy. That is the suspension of democracy." Moley, taking note of President Roosevelt's recent speech in behalf of his project, used some of the President's own expressions. Thus, he said he would "welcome out when others don't have the guts to do it. I bring to you in the name of the President an from his lips his sincere appreciation for your friendship and for your presence in Washington."

The meeting of the League opened a week which partisans of both sides predicted would bring debate on the court program to a new peak.

The President will follow up his Thursday appeal for enlargement of the Supreme Court with a "first side chat" broadcast to the nation tomorrow at 9:30 p. m., St. Louis time. Postmaster-General Farley will address the University of North Carolina Political Union tomorrow afternoon, and Attorney-General Cummings will open Senate hearings on the court bill Wednesday.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes will speak in support of the President's proposal at Raleigh, N. C., Friday night at a Democratic dinner. On that date also four Senators opposing the program will address a New York meeting.

The meeting today brought together prominent members both of the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, despite the unrelenting struggle between those groups for domination of the organized labor field.

the opportunity to speak to the man of whom we heard last week (from the President), the man who piles sandbags on the levees at Cairo.

"And if I spoke to him I would say that there is no evidence whatsoever that the Supreme Court has ever placed obstacles in the way of flood control."

Pecora, Criticizes Court. Pecora, a Justice of the New York Supreme Court, argued that the United States Supreme Court frequently reversed itself, adding "every time it changes its mind in effect it changes the Constitution itself."

"Thus has the Supreme Court made of itself a constitutional convention in perpetual session, virtually writing amendments to the Constitution without any mandate from the people; yea, indeed, at times in defiance of the stated wishes of the people."

He said the President's proposal to appoint new Justices was not "packing the Court."

"It is the Court today which is packed with a bare majority set against the voice of our people—a voice which for four years has cried aloud for relief from woes and sufferings imposed by man's stupidities and selfishness," he said.

"The opponents of the plan say further that its enactment will imperil our liberties. The cry of menace to our liberties has been raised against every liberal and progressive measure that has been enacted in the past 40 years."

But Democratic opponents on the House Rules Committee predicted they would "bottle up" the measure unless some compromise is produced. They are counting, they said, on an alliance with the four Republican committeemen to prevent the bill from reaching the floor.

The committee has 14 members. Most legislation passes through it by adoption of rules governing debate on specific measures.

Representative Treadway (Rep., Massachusetts), said he had drafted a proposal for a constitutional amendment to limit the Supreme Court's membership to nine, as at present.

The farm leaders who called on the President were N. W. Thatcher, John Vesecky, president, Farmers' Union, Kansas; C. C. Talbot, president, Farmers' Union, North Dakota; Emil Lorka, president, Farmers' Union, South Dakota; Oscar Fosheim, vice-president Farmers' Union, South Dakota; Leo Doherty, Minnesota Farmers' Union; J. Edward Anderson, Minnesota Farmers' Union; R. W. Hones, president, Farmers' Union, Wisconsin; A. R. Shumway, Washington State Farmers' Union and North Pacific Grain Growers of Idaho, Oregon and Washington; D. L. O'Connor, president Farmers' Union Terminal Association, Minnesota.

WARNING BY CLARK ON COURT PROPAGANDA

Senator Reads Law Forbidding Use of Appropriation to Influence Congressmen.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 8.—Senator Clark (Dem., Missouri), suggested today that some administration efforts for President Roosevelt's court reorganization proposal might run afoul of criminal laws prohibiting use of Federal funds to influence pending legislation.

Clark addressed the Senate after Majority Leader Robinson had declared anew that propaganda against the Roosevelt court bill was unfair.

The Missouriian read into the record the section of law forbidding use of any part of any appropriation to influence members of Congress on pending measures asserting he did so "in view of the propaganda that already has taken place from some high officers of this administration."

Scores of petitions were submitted by various Senators for and against the court plan, causing Senator Norris (Ind., Nebraska), to ask: "Is there any space left in the congressional record?"

Senator McNary (Rep., Oregon), then requested that a petition be held by the Judiciary Committee instead of being printed in the record. He proposed that procedure for other petitions.

Robinson's Charges. Robinson read a number of letters which he said were evidence of an effort "to influence Senators and Representatives through the means of overwhelming them with communications that are prompted."

They showed, he said, that the effort was not confined to Gerald B. Winrod of Wichita, Kan., whose letter he presented to the Senate last week, but was participated in by "a large number of individuals and agencies."

One letter read by Robinson suggested that the recipient telephone 10 friends and ask them to write, and in turn call 10 more friends. It said if this were repeated six times, 1,000,000 letters would pour into Congress.

The letters, Robinson added, indicated that clubwomen were taking part in the drive. He said they had "a perfect right," but that the communications indicated "an effort to mislead" and indicated "unfairness."

Half Million Petitions. Later Senator Burke (Dem., Nebraska), a leading opponent of the President's program, read a telegram from Winrod, which said: "The statement that the half million petitions received by Senators and Representatives during the last few days opposing the demoralization of the Supreme Court reflects Ku Klux Klan activity" is absolutely false. I am not a member of Klan or any other secret society and never have been."

Winrod described himself in the message as "a very ordinary minister of the gospel," adding that "200,000 more petitions started yesterday and can easily increase number to few million if necessary."

He explained that the "plan of suggesting that Christians petition their Representatives" was "solely my own idea and has no connection with the efforts of any other man or organization which may also be fighting to save the country from a dictatorship."

Speaking in the House, Representative Coolidge (Dem., North Carolina), said he favored President Roosevelt's court program because the Chief Executive needed it to enable him to carry out his "great program."

He asserted opponents have sought to "arouse fear" in the people that their rights would be endangered. Many of the people who are criticizing the President now, he said, called him "our saviour" a few months ago.

"If these men believe the President has formulated a conspiracy to destroy our Government, why don't they call him traitor? Why don't they draw up a bill of particulars against him?"

He declared no man could become a dictator in America except through bloodshed.

NON-PARTISANS TO ENTER TICKET IN CITY ELECTION

Citizens' Committee to Back Slate for Mayor, Comptroller and 14 Seats on Board of Aldermen.

'ECONOMY AND DECENCY' PLEDGE

Petitions to Be Circulated—List of Candidates to Be Made Public Next Monday.

The Citizens' Nonpartisan Committee announced today, through its chairman and executive director, Paul O. Peters, that it would enter a full ticket of nonpartisan candidates for municipal offices in the election of April 6.

A list of the committee's candidates for Mayor, Comptroller and the 14 places to be filled on the Board of Aldermen, from the odd-numbered wards, will be made public next Monday, three days after the primary, Peters said.

The candidates would be pledged to a platform "guaranteeing an administration of economy and decency during the next four years," he continued.

Nominating petitions would have to be circulated and filed to place the ticket on the ballot. The petitions would require signatures of at least 5000 qualified voters, or 2 percent of the vote cast for Mayor in 1933.

Signers of the petition must declare they are bona fide supporters of the nonpartisan candidates and have not aided and will not aid in the nomination of other candidates for the same offices. Hence, persons voting in the primary Friday would be ineligible to sign the petitions. The petitions must be filed with the Election Board by March 22.

About 3000 persons, Peters said, are members of the Citizens' Nonpartisan Committee. The committee opposed the 1935 river front bond election, in which the Post-Dispatch exposed wholesale fraud last year.

Statement by Peters.

"The approaching municipal election," Peters continued in his statement to the press, "finds St. Louis facing a most serious political problem. Her citizens have been deprived of their right to honest elections by corruption within and without the two principal political parties. Behind the debauchery are those who make profits by other than honest methods. The influence of these has been sufficiently great to lend protection to those who have committed the crimes against the community and to furnish the few who have been indicted with both bail and legal assistance.

"Toward this condition the Democratic machine headed by the city's chief executive has exhibited indifference.

"For every crime which has been committed against the sanctity of the ballot the Republicans bear equal responsibility with the Democrats. They now, after 16 months of silence, have entered the lists in an eleventh-hour hope that repentance against the corruption which has been exposed may turn the tide of public favor toward the nominees of their party's selection. So much for the principals. Against these, honest Democrats and Republicans alike rebel.

"Issues Easily Defined."

"The issues in the election are clear cut and easily defined. The battle is between political and civic corruption on the one hand and common decency and honesty on the other.

of our platform and candidates when presented."

No One on Committee to Run. The Citizens' Nonpartisan Committee has its office at 231 Title Guaranty Building. Peters is its active head. George J. Diepenbroek is vice-chairman and treasurer and there is an executive committee of about 20 members, headed by Peters. No member of the executive committee will be a candidate on the ticket, the chairman announced.

The committee may consider backing candidates for the five places to be filled on the Board of Education. This action may depend on the outcome of a proposed test of the law requiring membership on the board to be bipartisan rather than nonpartisan. Dr. Paul W. Preisler, chairman of the Socialist City Committee, has prepared to make this test. Peters expressed interest in Dr. Preisler's nonpartisan candidacy for the board. Nominating petitions for board members require 7500 signatures of qualified voters and must be filed by March 22.

WOMAN SOUGHT FOR FORGERY; ACCOUNTS SHORT $40,000

Missing Since She Left Lumber Office in New York

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 8.—New York police and the Pinkerton Detective Agency said last night a coast-to-coast search had been ordered for Mrs. Helen K. Harper, charged with forgery in connection with the misappropriation of funds of her employer.

Police circulars said the woman, the mother of a 9-year-old daughter, had been missing since Dec. 24, when she was said to have left the office of the Meredith Lumber Co., where she was employed, to go Christmas shopping.

She was indicted after testimony by her employer, Walter Hold, that there was a shortage of $40,000 to $50,000 in her accounts. The Pinkerton agency said she had been traced to Arizona and to Palm Springs, Cal.

MAJ. WILLIAM G. MURPHY OF JEFFERSON BARRACKS DIES

He was 43 years old.

Born in Pennsylvania, he was a member of the Pennsylvania National Guard in 1916-1917, then served in France as a Second and First Lieutenant with the 76th and 88th Divisions. He was made a Captain in the regular army in 1920.

At various times he was stationed with the Fourteenth Infantry at Panama, the Twenty-fourth Infantry at Fort Benning, Ga., was an assistant professor of military science and tactics at the Universities of Nebraska and Iowa, and was stationed at Jefferson Barracks in 1926 and 1927. Surviving are his wife, Florence, and two sons, William and James Murphy of Decatur. After a memorial service at Decatur tomorrow afternoon, the body will be sent to the Hoffmeister undertaking parlor, 7814 South Broadway. Funeral services will be held at the barracks chapel at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial, with military honors, will be at the National Cemetery at the post.

Little Chats About Your Health

Sensible Dress for Winter

In telling of the risk inherent in going from one extreme of temperature to another—as from an over-heated house to an outdoors of near zero—a physician says:

"Clothe yourself lightly in a warm house and put on a heavy overcoat when you go out. This simple rule is sensible and suited to our present living conditions."

Physicians warn that colds and respiratory troubles are particularly to be guarded against at this season.

If a cold persists or is accompanied by a chill or fever, go to bed and await the physician's advice.

DRYS SAY THEY WILL WIN IN 65 ALABAMA COUNTIES

Possession of State-Store Liquor Will Be Legalized in Sections That Vote for Prohibition.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 8.—Alabama will hold local option elections Wednesday, under a new law which sets up a state store liquor system in those counties voting wet. Possession of state-store liquor is authorized in counties that vote dry. The law licenses sale of beer by private dealers.

Harry Denman, campaign manager for the Alabama Temperance Alliance, said the drys would win in 65 counties, including Jefferson (Birmingham), and would have a 50,000 margin in the statewide total, which has no bearing on county results. Prohibitionists have admitted little hope of carrying Mobile and Montgomery Counties.

Albert Boutwell of Birmingham, chairman of the Local Legalization League, estimated a minimum of "15 to 20" counties would vote wet, including Jefferson.

MEMORIAL MEN

authority to allocate the Federal funds were unconstitutional.

None of these questions was passed on by the Court. The city's contribution of $220,000 came from the sale of bonds of that face value under the authorization voted for an issue of $750,000 for the memorial at a special election Sept. 10, 1935, in which widespread fraud had been disclosed.

Injunction suits filed in the Federal District Court at St. Louis held up the project for several months, but these were dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, the plaintiffs failing to show a property value of $3000 or more in controversy.

City Brief Filed. Although the City of St. Louis was not named as a party, City Counselor Edgar S. Wayman filed a brief in the Court of Appeals as a friend of the Court. He asked for permission to make an oral argument against the granting of the injunction, but the request was denied.

Clifford Greve of St. Louis and E. Geaslin of Washington, attorneys for the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission which promoted the undertaking, also filed briefs against the injunction. David H. Robertson of St. Louis was associated with Toland as counsel for the petitioners.

In holding that the city was a necessary party to the suit, the Court pointed out that the city's payment of $220,000 to the Government was an acceptance of the Government's offer to construct the memorial on the condition that the city contribute one-fourth of the cost, and that this constituted a contract between the city and the Government. This gave the city an interest in any action that would affect the contract, the Court said, and made the city an indispensable party.

Protesting Property Owners Say Fight Will Continue.

Two of the protesting property owners, Marquard F. Braun, president of the National Vinegar Co. and head of the Taxpayers' Defense Committee, and Bruno J. Teach, president of the Federal Fur and Wool Co., said today that the committee would continue its fight against the memorial plan. Both anticipated that the next step would be an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, but they said they would await legal advice as to this. Both firms were among the plaintiffs in the injunction suit. The committee will hold a meeting soon, Braun said.

A possible move of property owners opposing the memorial would be to apply to the Federal District Court at St. Louis, in the beginning of condemnation proceedings, for an injunction on the ground of imminent threat of damage for which adequate compensation might not be received.

Two earlier suits by property owners were dismissed by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis, but as no condemnation proceedings had been started the question of uncompensated damage in the taking of the property could not be raised in those suits. There the petitioners relied on prospective increase of taxes on other property owned in the city in the effort to establish the jurisdictional value of $3000 or more in controversy. Judge Davis ruled against jurisdiction in those suits.

Mayor Dickmann said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he hoped the city would be able to proceed promptly with work on the river front Jefferson Memorial. "The work has been held up by selfish interests," he remarked.

STORE DELAYED IN OPENING BY PARLEY WITH EMPLOYEES

Manager of McCrory's Says He Discussed Relations With Workers.

The McCrory five and ten cent store at Sixth and St. Charles streets was delayed 10 minutes in opening this morning because discussion of relations between employees and the management prolonged a regular weekly meeting of the manager with the 148 employees. Except to say, "We discussed relations between the employees, myself and the store," the manager, G. Hugh Stride, would not comment on the meeting. Several employees who were questioned by a reporter were equally reticent. The employees, mostly young women, are not organized.

The meeting began, as usual on Monday mornings, at 8:45 o'clock and was not concluded until 9:15 o'clock. The store is one of a chain operated by the McCrory Stores Corporation.

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING
AND DISCOMFORT

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften and cleanse. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and is especially suited to tender skin. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Doctors recommend an oily ointment because it penetrates the outer layers of the skin more effectively. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For over 40 years it has been—and still is—exclusively used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains nothing but ingredients that are healthy.

Use Resinol Ointment today and enjoy comfort tomorrow. Get a jar, also a cake of Resinol Soap, at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 1, Baltimore, Md.

Important Furs and Styles! Buy Now for Next Season!

Here's a glorious opportunity to have the kind of fur coat you've always wanted... at a price that may not be duplicated again for a long time... for fur prices are going steadily upward! These coats were purchased from approximately fifty different makers, each one letting us have just 3 or 4 coats. They're all different (in most cases there aren't more than 3 alike) and they're all of marvelous quality! Many of the furriers would have been only too glad to keep these coats till next season and sell them for much more, but because it's the official end of the season and we had favored these makers with much of our business we persuaded them to part with these furs. We've included only the fashions you'll be proud of next Winter as well as the remainder of this season... so whatever you buy will be a real investment!

TWO CHILDREN KILLED IN ALTON BY SKIDDING AUTO

Marcella Woolsey, 4, and Norma Slanker, 10, Hit By Car Out of Control On Oiled Street.

DRIVER TRYING TO PASS ANOTHER

Third Girl Struck by Third Machine, Jolted From Its Parking Place by Sliding Vehicle.

Two children were killed in Alton last evening by an automobile which skidded out of control on an oiled street when the driver tried to pass another machine. A third child was knocked down by a driverless car, jolted from its parking place by the skidding machine, but this child was not hurt seriously. The children killed were Marcella Woolsey, 4 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woolsey of Carrollton, Ill., and her cousin, Norma Slanker, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Slanker, 3703 Aberdeen avenue, Alton. Mrs. Woolsey and her daughter were visiting the Slankers.

The accident occurred in Aberdeen avenue, about a block from the Slanker home, at 6:20 o'clock. There are no sidewalks at that point. The girls, on their way to a grocery for bread, were hit by a machine driven by James F. Dunn, who rooms at 3705 Aberdeen avenue. Dunn told police he was driving east in second gear trying to pass an automobile driven by Ivan Meyer at whose home he rooms. His car skidded on the oiled street, swung to the side of the road, struck the children, came off a parked car and stopped against a pole.

Marcella Woolsey was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital. Norma Slanker died at the hospital three hours later of fractures of the skull and neck. Dunn was released and ordered to appear at an inquest.

When the parked machine was set in motion it hit Charlotte Stinson, 5, who was playing in front of her home. She was shaken and bruised. Her father, J. Stinson, looking out a window of his house, witnessed the accident.

Farmer, 74, Killed by Auto on Highway 111 at Alton.

James Strong, 74, farmer, a member of an old Alton family, was killed by an automobile last night while crossing State Route No. 111 at the outskirts of Alton.

The driver, Melvin E. Lynch, of Shipman, Ill., told police that Strong stepped from behind another machine into the path of his automobile. Strong, who was unmarried, lived with relatives at 402 West Delmar avenue, near the scene of the accident, in a building in which his grandfather, the late James Strong, operated an inn. He operated a small farm there and owned farm lands elsewhere.

Truck Driver Dozes, Wife Killed in Crash Near Eureka. Mrs. Virgil T. Frichette, 25, of Springfield, Mo., was killed at 3:45 a. m. yesterday when she was pinned in the cab of a heavy transport truck, which caught fire after striking the railing of an overpass over the Frisco Railroad tracks on highway 66, three-quarters of a mile east of Eureka, St. Louis County.

The truck, loaded with shelled corn, was driven by her husband, Charles Zimmer, 3514 California avenue, passing in his automobile, witnessed the accident and assisted Frichette, uninjured, from the truck cab. They were unable to get Mrs. Frichette out as the flames enveloped the cab.

The body was removed and taken to a mortuary at Ballwin after the Kirkwood fire department put out the fire. The condition of the body made it impossible to determine whether Mrs. Frichette died in the crash, or was burned to death. The truck, which stopped at the brim of the railroad embankment, was badly damaged and part of the $3000 cargo of corn was burned.

Woman Killed in Head-on Collision in St. Louis County.

Mrs. Oliver Niere, 44, 8820 Argyle avenue, Overland, was killed at 1:35 a. m. yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband was struck head-on by another machine on Natural Bridge road, near Lucas and Hunt road in St. Louis County.

Officers reported that the Niere automobile, westbound, was hit by an eastbound automobile driven by August Burton, 19, 2803 Madison street, which swerved after grazing another eastbound car.

Mrs. Niere was pronounced dead of a skull injury at County Hospital. Her husband, a machinist, suffered a fractured leg. Burton was treated for lacerations, as were two passengers in his machine.

At the inquest today Burton was held to have been criminally careless, and was ordered held under bond for the action of the prosecuting attorney.

GIRL, 17, GAGGED, MURDERED, ON WAY HOME FROM CHURCH

Body Discovered Short Distance From Mother's Residence in Detroit Suburb.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, March 8.—The body of Bernice Onisko, 17 years old, who had been gagged and killed on her way home from church, was found in a backyard near her home in suburban Hamtramck yesterday. Hamtramck police had no clue to her assailant.

Miss Onisko, who quit school last year to go to work when her father died, was seen last by her family when she left home Saturday night to go to church. The Rev. A. A. Majewski, pastor of St. Ladislav's Catholic Church, said he saw the girl there but did not notice her leave.

The body was found behind the home of Mrs. Bernice Kowalsky. She recalled hearing a scream Saturday night but thought it came from a nearby beer garden.

Police Capt. John Sikorski said criminal assault apparently was the motive of the killing, inasmuch as Miss Onisko's purse and jewelry had not been disturbed. Her scarf was stuffed into her mouth and her coat belt was tied around her neck.

MAN SOUGHT IN SWINDLING OF MRS. BLACKIDGE ARRESTED

Former Internal Revenue Collector Had Identified Photograph as That of Card Sharper.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 8.—Police Sgt. Roy Van Herik arrested yesterday a man he said was identified as Roy Browder, alias Roy Burgess, sought for six years for questioning in connection with a statement by Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge that she was swindled out of $50 in a faro game at Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. Blackledge, Van Herik said, had identified a photograph of Browder as that of one of three card sharpers who bilked her. Mrs. Blackledge formerly was Collector of Internal Revenue. The money she lost belonged to Edward Litsinger, former member of the Cook County Board of Review.

Mrs. Blackledge sued Litsinger for $150,000 for alleged defamation of character as a result of the investigation. The suit was dismissed.

A year ago, Mrs. Blackledge served six months in the county jail for failure to pay a $7500 judgment won by Mrs. Norman Nottingham, wife of a policeman. Mrs. Nottingham charged Mrs. Blackledge alienated her husband's affections.

452,000 HOLC BORROWERS UP TO DATE ON PAYMENTS

More Than 200,000 Are Cutting Arrangements; Foreclosure Authorized On 70,000.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 8.—Charles A. Jones, general manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, said today that 452,000 of the 1,000,000 persons who have borrowed from the corporation are in good standing as to principal and interest, and more than 95,000 are less than three months behind.

More than 200,000 are meeting monthly payments and are reducing arrearages. Up to Jan. 1 HOLC had collected $191,000,000 in principal and $282,000,000 in interest on loans. Many loans were made with a moratorium on the principal for the first three years. Total loans were more than $5,000,000,000.

Congressional hearings disclosed that up to last December HOLC had taken over 17,800 properties and authorized foreclosure on 70,000. No later figures have been made public.

FLYERS AND TULSA PAY OLD SCORES AS ST. LOUIS WINS, 5-1

POLICE HAVE A BUSY EVENING KEEPING PEACE AT THE ARENA

Tulsa, Playing Hard for a Place in the League Play-Offs, Finishes Second Best in Rough Match.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Trouble must have been in the air in athletic circles in St. Louis yesterday, for after a fist fight in the six-day bike race and another in the soccer game, the hockey players wanted to prove that they were no sissies, so while the Flyers were trimming the Tulsa Oilers 5 to 1 at the arena last night there was plenty of side action. In fact there was enough fist fighting and elbowing to do credit to a wrestling card.

A comparatively small crowd, announced as 483 persons, assembled in the big building. The game meant little to the Flyers, who have long since clinched first place in the American Association race and while Tulsa is still battling for a place in the playoffs, the St. Louis fans are not unduly excited about the outcome of the remaining games until the playoffs start, probably March 20.

Last chance for a punch. But the players evidently thought it was a good thing to pay off old scores as it likely will be the last meeting of the two clubs this season. And there is plenty to pay off between the Oilers and the Flyers. They have battled for several seasons and this season has been particularly acrimonious. At the first period passed quietly enough with only one goal, that for the Flyers scored by Ollie Mulvihill on a pass from Oscar Hansen near the close of the session and only one penalty, assessed against Swenson.

The second period, however, was only four minutes old when the Flyers scored their second goal, Burns making the count on a pass from Mitchell and then the fun began. Before the 20 minutes had elapsed, 10 penalties had been meted out, five for St. Louis and five for Tulsa, the players had engaged in fist fights, police rushed in to stop the melee and the referee was pushed about.

Lever, a rather quiet appearing fellow, made three trips to the box while Mulvihill, Hansen and Bellemere were set down twice each and Docie Bobby Burns obtained two minutes of rest in the box. It was a surprise that gentleman Pete Mitchell, still struggling to maintain his record of no penalties, was not sent to the cooler. That would have made the evening perfect.

Self imposed penalty. Even Gordon, the Tulsa coach, became confused because of the number of penalties and played his team one man short for nearly a minute because the assessments were flying so thick and fast that he thought he was keeping a man off to make sure that he was keeping within the rules.

While the Flyers and Oilers were each two men short, a fracas started in a corner of the rink in which Matie, Lever, Bellemere, Carbol, Wakeford and Mulvihill joined. Mulvihill and Bellemere were penalized and when they reached the box they started to fight in earnest.

Up came six or eight cops to quell the disturbance but Mulvihill managed to reach over the boards to take a solid crack at Burland of the Oilers.

With that players of both teams crowded about to join in the melee and Leo Carbol was sadly disappointed because he just couldn't find an excuse to punch somebody. He tried but the belligerents were beyond his reach.

While the police tried to restore order a comic touch was offered by Porky Levine, Tulsa goalie, who skated up to Hub Nelson, Flyer net guard, and shook hands with him. They were not interested in the battle.

Before the period ended the Flyers scored again, Mitchell taking a pass from Matie to count.

In the third session both clubs seemed to be rather tired. There were but two penalties with Swenson being chased for the Flyers and Burland for Tulsa. The Flyers added two useless tallies, the first after nearly five minutes, Burns counting on a pass from Ingram and the second at seven minutes when Matie scored on a pass from Burns.

Otherwise the game wore on to its normal close without undue excitement.

The Human Fly Was There. A spectator, evidently ill at the worst for wear tried to climb over the screen behind the Tulsa goal in the third period for a word or two with Levine. He got one word over the wire and hung there precariously until a squad of ushers induced him to get down.

The Flyers play two games in Minneapolis this week, then return home Sunday night to finish the

Held for Texas Bank Robbery.
By the Associated Press.
EMPORIA, Kan., March 8.—A man booked here yesterday as George Dewey Shipley, 37 years old, was charged with the $23,706 robbery of the First Coleman National Bank of Coleman, Tex. The robbery took place three years ago. A dozen officers took part in a raid on a secluded ranch house, and in addition to Shipley, arrested a man and woman who later were booked as Mr. and Mrs. James A. McVey. McVey, officers said, would be held for questioning by Oklahoma officers. The woman was held for investigation.

Dr. Trip, who succeeded Leon Fraser, now president of the First National Bank of New York, in 1935, resigned last December but agreed to continue in office until the assembly could approve his successor.

Two Things Happen When You Are Constipated, Distress And Nerve Pressure

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: The bowels increase in size and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This nerve pressure causes headache, a dull, lary feeling, bilious spells, loss of appetite and dizziness. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach (acid indigestion) and heartburn, creating a feeling of fullness until you sometime gasp for breath.

Then you spend many miserable days. You can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is sour. You feel tired out, grouchy and miserable.

To get the complete relief you seek you must do TWO things. 1. You must relieve the GAS. 2. You must soothe the bowels and GET THAT PRESSURE OFF THE NERVES. As soon as waste materials are washed out you feel marvelously refreshed, blues vanish, the world looks bright again.

There is one product on the market you can rely on that gives you the DOUBLE ACTION you need. It is ADLERIKA. This efficient curative relieves that awful gas at once. It often removes bowel congestion in half an hour. No waiting for overcast relief. Adlerika acts on the stomach and both bowels. Ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only.

Adlerika has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. No griping, no after effects, no crick results. Try Adlerika today. You'll say you have never used such an efficient intestinal cleanser.

THE MODERN BLEND

What should a cigarette taste like?

According to the English tradition of blending, the only flavour of a cigarette should be that of fine tobaccos. The Turkish Pall Mall, long famous as "A Shilling in London, A Quarter Here," has always observed that tradition.

The new Pall Mall, at 15¢ for 20, is blended in the same simple manner. There is no artificial flavouring in Pall Mall—no sweetening under which to mask imperfections. Pall Mall brings you the flavour of selected domestic tobaccos, enriched by fine Oriental types. It is the only cigarette of its type without artificial flavouring.

The special English wrapping provides a tab on the back with which to open the corner easily. This leaves the remainder of the cellulose for protection.

Long Session Likely Unless
Stark Picks Kansas City
Election Board Satisfac-

GOVERNOR SAYS HE'S IN NO HURRY

Casey, in Senate, Could Reject Selections Now, but Recess Appointment s
Would Hold 18 Months.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 8.—The present Missouri Legislature, which has been in session two months with a record of only three bills passed, gives indications of at least equaling in duration the five-month session of two years ago.

So far as the business before it is concerned, the session could be ended within a month, but there appears now a strong likelihood that unless Gov. Stark should select a Kansas City Election Board in every way satisfactory to the Pendergast organization in Kansas City, an endurance contest will develop between the Governor and Senator Casey of Kansas City which will hold the Legislature in session indefinitely.

The Governor has given no indication of whom he will name election commissioners in the Pendergast-controlled Jackson County city, which for weeks has been bewildered by the rapidity with which a Federal grand jury has returned decision fraud indictments and with which Federal juries have convicted those brought to trial.

The little the Governor has said about the Kansas City appointments has indicated that he may have a waiting game in mind. He told newspaper men recently: "I see no reason to be in a hurry about naming election commissioners in Kansas City. There will be no election there until the municipal primary in February, 1938, and nothing for an Election Board to do before that time. I shall go thoroughly into the matter before I act."

Reasons for Delay.

If the Governor intended to name a Pendergast board there would be no reason for delay, but if it is his intention to name representative Kansas City citizens who could not be used by the Pendergast organization, there is every reason for delay.

Appointments made while the Legislature is in session must be confirmed by the Senate. Appointments made after the adjournment of the Legislature will not come before the Senate for confirmation until the next Legislature, which does not convene until Jan. 4, 1939.

Senator Casey, who dominates the Senate and is a loyal member of the Pendergast organization, has it within his power to prevent confirmation of any appointees to whom he or the boss objects. Thus if Gov. Stark should reject Pendergast's selections for election commissioners and send in other names, it is virtually certain they would be rejected, but if he waits until after the Legislature ends, he may name whom he pleases and they will be in office for a year and a half, through the next general State election.

Endurance Contest Likely.

The possibility of an endurance test between the Governor and Senator Casey lies in the fact that Casey realizes the situation just as well as the Governor appears to realize it, and it may be expected that he will find a way to hold the Legislature in session in an effort to force the Governor's hand.

While there would be much grumbling by legislators who at the end of the first 70 days of the session, which will be on March 16, will receive a salary of only $1 a day, they stayed on a dollar a day for 77 days two years ago, when the session continued for 147 days.

With the apparently complete domination of the Senate by the Casey-Kinney-Brogan group, there is little doubt that as Casey will the Senate will act. Even though there might be rebellion to threaten the Casey power, he could adopt the expedient of adjourning the session without passing the appropriation bills. That would force the Governor to call a special session, to which any appointments which were made would have to be submitted for confirmation.

This might prove too dangerous for the Kansas City Senator to attempt, as it could result in a situation in which the Senator's lines might fall to hold and in which he might lose the power in which he now appears so secure.

This brings to attention the fact that the appointive power of the

British Labor Party Program Urges Government-Owned Rail, Coal, Power, Munitions Industries

It Also Proposes Bank of England Be Made a Public Institution and That Use of Land Be Controlled.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 8.—The Labor party yesterday issued its program for the economic reorganization of Great Britain, embodying control of finance, land, transportation, coal and power by the nation.

The program, which lays down the policies a Labor government would carry out if in power, was drawn up by the party's national executive committee.

Key points are:
The Bank of England would become a public institution.

A national investment board would be formed to control new investments.

Public ownership of the coal industry and electricity and gas enterprises.

Formation of a national transport board to co-ordinate road, rail and air transport and coastwise shipping and to own and operate railways.

Improved standards with legislation for shorter working hours.

Steps to remove the economic causes of international rivalry and re-invigoration of the League of Nations.

Substitution of an international air police force for national air forces.

The Government to be empowered to take over any enterprises manufacturing munitions.

The statement said the land should belong to the people and the use of land be controlled in the public interest.

Mrs. Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition in Parliament, declared "our plans deal with the immediate situation as we find it, and lay the foundation for a Socialist commonwealth."

The Daily Mail criticized the program as "visionary and dangerous" and said "it appears that the Socialist ideal is to pull credit and industry to pieces at home and involve Britain in any war that breaks out anywhere."

The News Chronicle disagreed with the Mail's editorial position declaring "whatever else they may be advocating, it is assuredly not violent political or economic change."

It is Expected That Skeleton
Plan Will Go in Effect
Saturday.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 8.—The 27-nation control scheme to prevent arms and volunteers from reaching the armies fighting in Spain probably will go into effect next Saturday, it was indicated here today.

Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, has been urging that at least skeleton control be put into operation on that date, and the subcommittee of the international neutrality committee is expected to approve when it meets today after a day's rest.

An international agreement to halt the flow of volunteers to Spain has been in effect for two weeks. The larger control scheme is to include a four-power naval patrol around the coast of Spain to prevent war supplies from reaching the combatants.

Informed sources said only two problems remained as obstacles to agreement.

Portugal must be reconciled to permitting Soviet ships to call at Lisbon and Madeira, designated as control ports at which ships bound for Spain must call to prove they are not carrying war materials.

Portugal does not recognize the Soviet government and objects to visits of Russian ships to Portuguese ports.

Germany must be induced to pay its share of the control costs in "usable currency." Berlin's delegate wants to pay in Reichsmarks, which are not acceptable to other members of the committee.

POPE BLESSES GOLDEN ROSE HE WILL GIVE ITALIAN QUEEN

Pontiff Also Accords Her the Title
"Empress of Ethiopia," Thereby
Recognizing Conquest.

By the Associated Press.
VATICAN CITY, March 8.—Pope Pius XI, in a ceremony in his private apartments, blessed yesterday the golden rose he will bestow on Queen Elena of Italy to commemorate the fortieth anniversary of her marriage to King Vittorio Emanuele.

The Pope stood during the ceremony, but it was simplified because of his illness.

The golden rose is a cluster of roses fashioned of gold and mounted in a silver vase. Only two others, Queen Mother Elisabeth of the Belgians and former Queen Victoria of Spain, have received this high Papal honor during the reign of Pope Pius.

The Pope placed balsam and powdered musk on the cluster. He recited a prayer of blessing for the emblem "which we carry this day in sign of spiritual joy."

The Papal nuncio to Italy will take the gift to Queen Elena after Easter.

In announcing the award, the Vatican accorded Queen Elena the title of Empress of Ethiopia, giving Papal recognition of the conquest of Ethiopia.

By the Associated Press.
TRIPOLI, Libya, March 8.—Marshal Italo Balbo prepared today for the climax of his career as Governor of Libya—the arrival of Premier Benito Mussolini Thursday to inspect his North African domain.

Balbo has just completed his third year as Governor of the extensive Italian possession.

Balbo marshalled his military forces, greatly augmented during the Italian-Ethiopian war and still above previous strength, to give a display for Mussolini when he arrives on one of his rare junkets away from Fascist Italy.

A feature of the military show will be the young Fascist youth of Italy and called "Arab Youth of the Lictor's Emblem."

Another high point of the Premier's visit will be an inaugural drive along the 125-mile highway stretching by the coast from French Tunisia to Egypt.

New public works, excavations of arches, theaters and temples left by the ancient Romans, settlers' colonies; model native settlements with new tukul—circular houses—designed by Italian architects; artesian wells—all will be inspected.

OPEN BUYING OF GOLD STARTED IN FRANCE

Price at Central Bank 21.80
Francs to Dollar—Ingots and Coins Offered.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, March 8.—The Bank of France began buying gold today at the rate of 21.80 francs to the United States dollar or about 4.58 cents a franc.

The official quotation at the opening of transactions under the domestic open gold market was 24.508,527 francs for one kilogram of gold. No selling price was quoted.

The price paid was based on the world price of gold and future prices will be dependent on fluctuations in the world price. The buying quotation was equivalent to about 106.35 francs to the pound sterling.

(Before the national financial policy was revised last week, the franc quotations were about 106.11 francs to the pound and 21.50 to the dollar.)

Early foreign exchange quotations in Paris today set the franc at 107.75 to the pound and between 21.92 and 22 francs to the dollar.

The bank began buying operations in accordance with the open market policy announced Friday by Premier Blum at the same time the country was told a huge national defense loan would be floated soon.

The defense offering has been postponed until Wednesday to allow Parliament to pass necessary guarantees for the loan.

The bank's operations today were under existing financial statutes. Offerings to the bank included ingots and gold coins.

Borah Opposes Any Effort to Finance French Loan in U. S.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 8.—Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, said today that any effort to finance the French billion dollar defense fund loan in the United States would be a violation of the Johnson act and bankers participating would be "taking some risk."

Speaking in the Senate, Borah said it was reported that an effort to get around the Johnson act, forbidding loans to nations defaulting in their debts, would be made by carrying on the transaction in France.

"It is intimated," he added, "that the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, is willing that such a transaction be carried on. I do not assume that he would connive at a violation of the spirit of the

GERMAN BOND OFFER FOR UNPAID INTEREST

Face Value of Principal in Default Is $640,000,000, Involving 120 Issues.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 8.—Holders of German dollar obligations on which interest is overdue will be formally offered today 3 per cent dollar funding bonds of the "conversion office for German foreign debts" in satisfaction of the unpaid interest, it was announced yesterday.

The tender will be made to holders of coupons of about 120 German issues on which interest is overdue for the period July 1, 1934, to Dec. 31, 1936.

Three per cent conversion bonds will be authorized for $65,000,000. The various issues to which the funding offer will apply have a face value of $640,000,000.

Funding bonds are the direct obligation of the conversion office, established by the German Government in 1933 to receive payments of interest and amortization on German foreign loans.

In allowing the registration statement covering the issue of funding bonds the Securities and Exchange Commission pointed out some of the uncertainties of Germany's financial position which were not made clear in the statement.

The commission said Germany had a large floating debt of undisclosed proportions; that it had been unable to obtain necessary information concerning the debt; and that it had decided to allow the registration statement purely in order that American holders of the old obligations might get something out of their securities.

Because the issue involves no new cash offering, officials said, the Johnston Act, prohibiting the sale of securities in this country by governments that have defaulted on debts to the United States would not apply.

The commission, the statement said, merely permitted the exchange of German scrip, or a new promise to pay, for interest coupons.

BRITISH WOULD BAR AMERICAN ENTERTAINERS AT CORONATION

Variety Artists Present Demand for Local Employment Preference to Labor Ministry.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 8.—Looking forward to a period of top billings around May 12, the coronation date, the British Variety Artists' Federation has protested to the Ministry of Labor against the importation of foreign competition—particularly American.

The British stars outlined three demands: Local talent should be given employment preference during the coronation festivities; the split on entertainment programs should be 60 per cent British and 40 per cent foreign; every time two foreign acts get work in Great Britain, one British act should be hired in that foreign country.

The last clause was understood to be directed particularly at the United States where, the British stars complained, not enough British stars were employed.

There are about 2000 foreign artists at present on the boards of British theaters.

MOTHERS VOTE IN BULGARIA

Cast Ballots in Unimportant Community Elections.

By the Associated Press.
SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 8.—Mothers voted for the first time yesterday in this nominally dictatorial country. They cast their ballots in communal elections that began without incident in two regions.

The voting, giving the populace a voice in government, will continue in other regions until March 23.

Bulgaria's new election system was started Feb. 1. Under it "all Bulgarian citizens are treated alike," and King Boris III relinquishes voluntarily a part of the power given him in 1934. The new statute grants the franchise for the first time in Bulgarian history to certain women. The elections, however, are for the relatively unimportant community councillorships.

MONARCHIST RALLY IN VIENNA

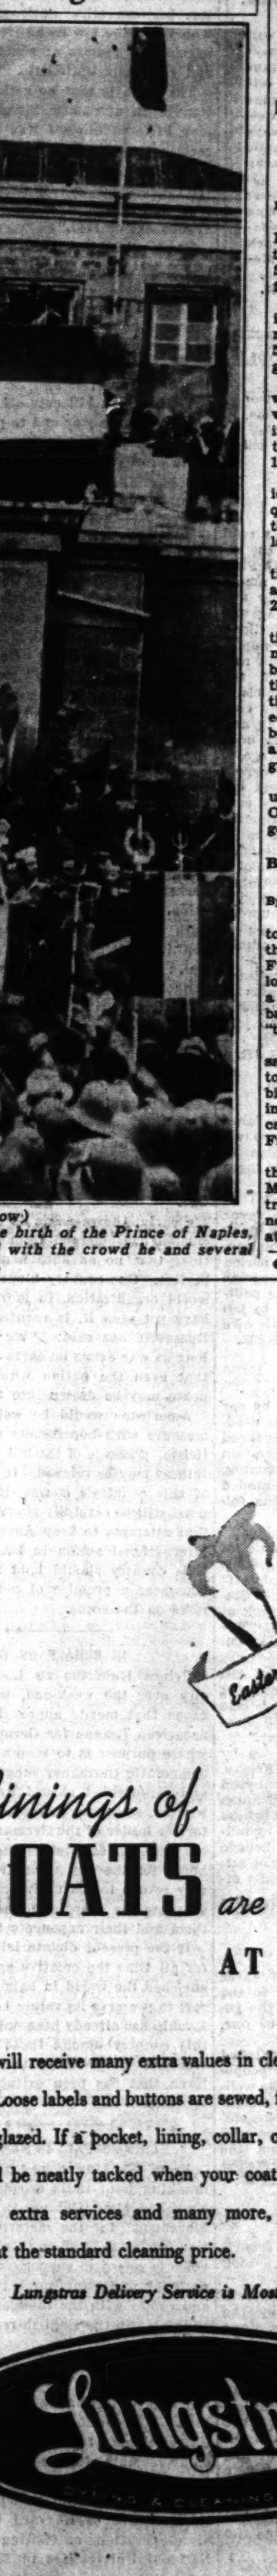

Stench Bombs Tossed, but Archdukes and Others Stay.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, March 8.—A mass meeting of 4000 supporters of the restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria was interrupted yesterday when stench bombs were tossed into the meeting place.

Numerous Archdukes and aristocrats of the old system were among those who coughed and sneezed but gamely held their places and went on with the meeting. Austrian Nazis were blamed for the bombing and 22 were arrested.

Political observers considered it highly significant that the Government permitted a monarchist mass meeting to be held. Karl Werkman, former secretary to the late Emperor Charles, said in the meeting that coming of "the peoples' monarchy is inevitable."

The Miracle Enacted

NOT so long ago, not much more than two months ago, most observers would have said that the United States Steel would be a long time in making peace with his union. During the early days of the General Motors strike, for example, I remember receiving a spate of letters asking me for saying that Mr. Sloan was in an untenable position, and that the rights of all property, including that of Mr. Sloan, were being denied.

No doubt many circumstances have contributed to this historic reversal of position, and it would be hard to say which are the most important. The election must have had an effect, at least in creating an atmosphere where business men saw more clearly the temper of the country.

The General Motors trouble proved that traditional anti-unionism was utterly played out. The steel industry, however, was not so lucky. It was a method of defeating that whole aspect of labor management which might be described as Pinchotism.

Then, too, Mr. Lewis has proved himself to be an exceptionally able organizer and labor leader. Myron Taylor of the steel corporation happens by good luck to be an unusually enlightened and far-sighted industrialist.

Moreover, economic conditions are very favorable. The steel industry is not only booming but there is every prospect that the boom will become bigger, with the world-wide demand at home arising from new building and the re-equipment of the railroads and the like.

From the general point of view, this boom in steel raises problems that will soon call for serious attention. The steel industry is a very easy for Mr. Taylor to surrender gracefully without too much complaint from his stockholders.

But over and above all these elements there must have been, it seems to me, one that was indispensable but decisive. It was the recognition, which is increasingly general, that a complete, sincere and thoroughgoing choice has to be made, and made at once, between peace and war, between the psychology of the class struggle and the psychology of democratic persuasion and consent.

No sensible person denies that there are conflicts of interest between labor and capital, between industry and agriculture, between regions of America and among groups of people. The question is whether those conflicts of interest are to be adjusted, composed and compromised, or whether they are to be sharpened and dramatized into an embittered and deadly struggle.

As long as big business stood entrenched behind its Pinkertons and its dogmas, it was in fact imbued with the psychology of class war, however much it might deplore the idea when openly preached from a soap-box. The refusal to recognize the unions and to negotiate with them could not by any possibility be described as an attitude of peace; among nations, the equivalent is a refusal to have diplomatic relations, an act just short of war which generally leads to war.

This warlike state of mind had to be overcome and radically reversed if the country was not to be drawn into a destructive struggle between so-called economic royalists on the one side and Bolshevists or whatever the epithet is on the other. The time had to come when stubborn suspicion and animosity gave way to matter-of-fact dealing between men.

If trouble without end, and a deep injury to the institutions and the morale of the country were to be avoided, the unbelievable miracle had to occur. Big business had to recognize big unionism, or to put it in plain terms, Mr. Taylor had to make a bargain with Mr. Lewis and each had to assume that the other was an honest man. They have done just that.

And now that miracle has been enacted, we may well ask ourselves why we were so stupid as not to see how easy it is, how obvious, how plainly the only thing for sane men to do.

'GOOD EARTH' SUPERB FILM VERSION OF NOVEL

Picture at American Keeps Close to Original, With Use of Best Screen Technique.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

PEARL BUCK'S novel, "The Good Earth," has come vividly to the screen, at the American Theater. What Mrs. Buck set down of Chinese stoicism and devotion, of stark suffering and simple joy, of privation and affluence, is there. Hollywood has reached a peak artistically but mainly may be congratulated on its good judgment and discretion.

Perfection—and as a motion picture "The Good Earth" registers near that level—is in keeping the inspiration of the author, through such a unity as is accomplished only by wholehearted teamwork of producer, director, screen play writers, actors, photographer and film editor. It would be well-nigh impossible to rank individual credits or know where to end them. Bowing deeply in the direction of Mrs. Buck, one has to reverse the memory of Producer Irving Thalberg, to accord it the directorial genius and experience of Sidney Franklin, acclaim the photographic mastery of Karl Freund and thank the heavens for such stars as Paul Muni and Luise Rainer.

This Chinese example from many a love motif, pathos, spectacle, action, scenic effects, even a social pattern. It has come forth as the most visually beautiful thing since "Tabu," the most sincere folk story since "Hallelujah," and the most poetic motion picture creation since D. W. Griffith's "Isn't Life Wonderful?"

No week's payroll of extras has even been herded together for a more memorable scene than that of famine-stricken peasants on a railroad right-of-way fleeing to the South; no more thrilling or amazing battle has ever been waged for the camera than that in which the farmers fight the locusts. From first to last, "The Good Earth" is a mixture of pastoral and mass movement, in a subtle photographic tint that gives it the character of an enormous animated rotoscope. All this is not merely Hollywood exhibitionism but necessary elaboration of the novel. China is chaotic, China moves with mighty lifts, China is stifled with life. The film had to show that, to set the lives of two peasants in proper relation.

"THE GOOD EARTH" opens, on screen as in print, on the day of Wang Lung's wedding to the slave girl, O-Lan, and with O-Lan's oath in the thriving household that comes of Wang Lung's rise to fortune. Wang Lung's senescence, and about a hundred dwindling pages of the book, are thereby dropped off.

With Academy laurels fresh upon them, Muni, as Wang Lung, and Luise Rainer, as O-Lan, set up new marks for their rivals to shoot at. Miss Rainer's role of the quiet but sensitive farm woman is far the more appealing, of such tenderness that even the sight of her—and she has only a few hundred words of dialogue, at the most—is profoundly moving. Even her Austrian accent seems to make her more native to the scene.

Muni's, I think, is more an achievement. Whereas Miss Rainer has only to hold to O-Lan's patient and pathetic wisdom, Muni has to go from young, exultant farmer to careless, dissatisfied patrician, has to be glad, angry, pitiful and lordly. Few sequences in the film stand out so well as when he says, in time of famine, "The earth has forgotten us. The earth, I hate it!"

Makeup of the most skillful order, understandable English in place of Charlie Chan dialect, and the choice of real but English-speaking Chinese for supporting roles, have produced an international blend to make the film a finely wrought masterpiece.

It is that, a motion picture as far from the ordinary double bill affair as the Forbidden City is from Grand boulevard, or Confucius from the Three Stooges.

'FRANKIE AND JOHNNIE' DEFENSE BY BENTON

Artist Addresses Junior Leaguers—Answers Critics of Capitol Murals.

Just why Thomas Hart Benton considered the episode of Frankie shooting Johnnie, because "he done her wrong," as more significant in Missouri's social history than the part played by many famous Missourians was explained by the painter this morning in a lecture before the Junior League in its clubrooms at 4963 Maryland avenue, in which he answered criticisms of his murals in the State Capitol at Jefferson City.

The questions asked by the audience after Benton finished his talk were typical of those propounded by people who are puzzled or profess to be shocked by the murals. Why show so much of the sordid side of life in Missouri? Why not something nobler, more inspiring, more pleasing to the eye, something showing out finer citizens and our highest culture? Wouldn't future generations look at those paintings and think us an uncouth and ignorant lot? And who, one woman wanted to know, were Frankie and Johnnie?

The swart little painter's dark eyes twinkled as he answered the familiar questions. The "Frankie and Johnnie of the ballad," he said. With the stories of Huck Finn and the James boys, they constitute the most famous legends of our State. The space could have been filled with portraits of Governors, but more people throughout the nation have heard of Frankie and Johnnie than of any of Missouri's Governors, he said. Frankie and Johnnie are a rough symbol, but a good one, of what is happening all the time in a certain stratum of society, the painter asserted.

He had to try to picture the whole of Missouri's background in a limited space, he explained. All kinds of people had to be shown, and none of them seemed sordid to him, or to themselves. Through history artists have had to combat efforts to force them to pretty up their work to conform to an ideal rather than a reality, or simplicity. Benton said. Michelangelo was told by the Pope that his figures in the Sistine Chapel hadn't enough gold on them, Benton pointed out.

Many of the moral objections to the murals, which were painted under a Democratic administration, came from Republican neighborhoods, he said slyly. The only protest to him about the scene showing a slave auction came from a Negro politician, but, he related, he mollified the politician by putting him in the mural!

The chief objections to the murals, he said, were that they break with convention by depicting objects in high relief instead of on a plane and by presenting a realistic view of Missouri society, contrary to the established view, held both by conservatives and radicals in art, that mural paintings is an art of idealization rather than realism.

REPORT ON FOREIGN FUNDS SENT TO U. S.

Influx of $1,141,000,000 in 1936—Total Now $7,750,000,000.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Commerce Department reported today that unrest abroad and hope of security and profit here sent $1,141,000,000 of foreign capital to the United States in 1936. It was estimated this influx, together with an increase in the value of previous foreign investments here, pushed foreigners' aggregate holdings in this country to $7,750,000,000 at the end of 1936 compared with $6,609,000,000 a year ago.

The capital influx has raised domestic and international monetary questions, and, under direction from President Roosevelt, fiscal officials have been studying methods of checking it.

Amos E. Taylor, assistant chief of the finance division, the Commerce Department, said in a report foreigners shipped money to this country last year largely for the purchase of securities, accumulation of dollar balances in banks, and acquisition of American-held foreign bonds.

The $1,141,000,000 influx was $400,000,000 less than that in 1935 and was composed roughly of two-thirds long-term funds for investment and one-third capital placed in short-term banking accounts. Long-term funds go largely into American securities, and administration experts have been attempting to measure the extent to which they increase stock and bond prices.

Administration officials have said the continued influx, besides artificially inflating credit and prices, might affect the price structure if it were suddenly withdrawn.

Taylor added that foreign purchases of American securities were particularly heavy during the final quarter of 1936. It was in this period that stocks and bonds climbed swiftly and numerous dividends were declared.

The inflow of money into American banks was "particularly sensitive" to European conditions, the report said. These short-term banking funds sometimes are referred to as "hot" or "nervous" money—capital which goes from one country to another seeking security.

About $52,000,000 in American currency was shipped to Europe last year, Taylor said, adding that a factor in this probably was the hoarding of dollars by citizens of European countries. American tourist expenditures abroad were estimated at $400,000,000 last year, an increase of $84,000,000 over the previous year.

WEST VIRGINIA PASTOR HELD ON CHARGE OF KILLING WIFE
He Says Death Was Accidental; Prosecutor Asserts He Told Two Stories.

BECKLEY, W. Va., March 8.—The Rev. M. H. Ball accompanied by a Sergeant of the State Police, journeyed to the Southern West Virginia community of Jesse, 40 miles from here yesterday where Mrs. Gay Ball, his 25-year-old wife was buried, and then was returned to jail. Friends and relatives maintained the shooting of Mrs. Ball was accidental and offered to aid the clergyman. He is pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Rock Creek, small mountain town 25 miles from Beckley.

Mrs. Ball died of a shotgun wound in her back Thursday. Her husband was arrested later. A hearing on a murder charge was set for this afternoon. Hugh A. Dunn, attorney for Ball, said the minister would plead that his wife met death by accident.

Prosecutor W. A. Thornhill Jr. said there were discrepancies in the stories told by Ball. He told a coroner's jury the two were out walking and saw a hawk and Mrs. Ball returned for the shotgun. He said Ball added he went home later and found his wife dead. The prosecutor said later Ball told him the wife was shot when he attempted to get a shotgun from under a bed to return it to a neighbor.

GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY DISCUSSES DEMOCRACY AND CAPITALISM
Former Does Not Flourish Without Other, Writer Declares in Address.

George E. Sokolsky, who spent 14 years in the Orient as an editor and news writer, declared in an address last night at the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A. that democracy did not flourish without capitalism.

The most striking observation of Western civilization, he said, is that capitalism countries, as compared with non-democratic nations, contain greater accumulation of wealth and higher standards of living under government by laws rather than by individuals.

This results largely, he continued, from constant reinvestment of earnings under capitalism. Under capitalism increased demand results in technological improvements which reduces prices to consumers, he said, citing the automobile industry in the United States.

John P. Cushing, 82 years old, 4047 De Young street, died yesterday at City Hospital of a skull injury suffered last Tuesday when he suffered a dizzy spell and fell to the pavement while walking near his home.

Cushing, a stationary engineer, is survived by his wife.

STEEL STRIKERS WANT C. I. O.
Demanding Recognition from Bethlehem Corporation.
By the Associated Press.
LEBANON, Pa., March 8.—Steel strikers at the Lebanon plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation voted unanimously at a mass meeting yesterday to demand that the company recognize the Committee for Industrial Organization as the bargaining agency for members of the C. The company Saturday night announced that, effective March 16, all workers would receive a pay increase of 10 cents an hour. The work week would remain at 48 hours, but the company would pay time and a half for the last eight hours to comply with the provisions of the Walsh-Healy act.

CRUISE POISONED BY FISH
American Vessel On World Cruise
Falls Into Pitcairn Island for Aid, Gets Under Way Again.
By the Associated Press.
BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 8.—The American yacht "Yankee," out of Gloucester, Mass., is safely on its way to New Zealand after putting into Pitcairn Island with all aboard except one poisoned from eating fish, advice reaching here today.
A letter to Postmaster W. D. Taylor at Cristobal, Canal Zone, from Chief Magistrate Richard Edgar Christian, dated Feb. 12, said the "Yankee" arrived at Pitcairn from Easter Island with all except "one boy" poisoned from eating fish caught two days before. The letter said they could not manage their ship.
Men were put aboard the vessel and all except the captain and the chief officer were taken ashore and treated for a week.
The "Yankee," commanded by Irving Johnson and manned by a crew of 16 college men, sailed from Gloucester last November on a world cruise. Aboard were Capt. Johnson's wife and their 11-month-old son, Miss Nancy Holdsworth of Brookline, Mass., and Gloucester, was listed as a sail maker.

'WE ARE NEAR THE PASSING OF NATION,' SAYS FR. COUGHLIN
Radio Priest Fears Constitution Faces Possibility of Being Relocated to Museums.
DETROIT, March 8.—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin told a radio audience yesterday that "we are very near a national crisis"—the "passing of a nation."
"I fear greatly," Father Coughlin said, "that this Constitution which we have come to rely upon so much has the possibility of being this month or next month, of being relegated to museums, incarcerated in libraries and regarded by our children as having passed out of existence."
He termed the Supreme Court the "guardian of the Constitution." He said the enlargement plan was a "packing" or an "un-packing" of the court.
He declared "the common people should inquire into the reasons why the Court threw out NRA and AAA, find the weaknesses in the Constitution and then amend it."
He said it took but nine months to ratify the repeal of prohibition and that changes in the Constitution to cover present economic needs could be obtained in a short time.

PACIFIC LINER TO DRY DOCK AFTER COLLISION WITH TANKER
Passengers Leave President Coolidge; Other Vessel Stuck in Mud Bank.
By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—The liner President Coolidge was ordered into drydock today after a collision Saturday with a tanker in Golden Gate channel waters. The liner's 678 passengers all were ashore.
The tanker, Frank H. Buck, still was afloat. After drifting seaward almost five miles following the collision in a heavy fog Saturday the tanker drifted toward shore again. Tugboats and coast guard cutters had three lines aboard the boat, and its owners were hopeful of wrenching it free from a mudbank, about 100 yards off shore. The tanker's stern was high in the air, but its broken bow was in the mud. Steamship officials estimated loss from the collision at $850,000.

The marchers included a group which had come directly from funeral services for two of the fire victims, Joshua Handelman and his wife, Rose, and members of the East Side Tenants' Union, who just had completed a mass meeting in protest against slum conditions.

STOCK LIST UNSETTLED BY SELLING LATE IN DAY

Boost of Domestic Copper
Price to 16 1/4 Cents
Brings Heavy Buying
Into Mining Group
Rails and Others Up for
Time—Steels Down.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 8.—Despite heavy buying in mining issues in the stock market today, following a boost in the domestic copper price of 1 1/4 cents a pound to 16 1/4 cents, the best level since 1930, late general selling unsettled the list.
Previously, rail, utility, oil and specialty leaders achieved popularity, many reaching new highs for the recovery move.
Major steels, motors and an assortment of other recent topnotchers struggled unsuccessfully to overcome profit selling and declines were plentiful at the close. Transfers were around 3,300,000 shares.
Chrysler converted an early backslide into a gain in the fourth hour, but met large offerings and fell back sharply in the concluding lap. General Motors in the concluding lap throughout as four Chevrolet factories were shut down by a strike. Labor disputes also broke out in Chrysler factories. Hudson Motors factories were hit by a "stay-in" labor difficulty.
While renewed labor difficulties tended to cool Wall Street's ardor for securities somewhat, traders seemed to find many encouraging signs in the industrial picture.
Steel operations were estimated at a new peak since 1929, with most of the mills booked up for months to come.
Bonds followed an indefinite range with U. S. Government loans lower. Commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was up 1/2 cent a bushel and corn improved 1/2 cent.

The French franc came back briskly in foreign exchange transactions as France began to buy gold on a "free" market basis.
Shares of New York Central opened with a block of 30,000, up a point. This issue, along with some other rail, ground in subsequent proceedings.
Among the better performers were Sloss-Sheffield, which got up 13 points, and Homestead Mining, ahead some 16 at the best. In the front line were Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, St. Joseph Lead, Inspiration, Copper, de la Pasco, Barnsdall, Atlantic Refining, Seaboard Oil, International Silver, Pennsylvania, Western Union, American Telephone, Republic Steel, U. S. Pipe & Foundry and Gulf States Steel.

On the downside, a few as much as 5 or 60 at the worst, were Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson Motor, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Yellow Truck, Mack Truck, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Pontiac, Loew's, Newport Industries, North Pacific, Santa Fe and Baltimore & Ohio.

The copper uplift followed a rise in prices of the export red metals as well as an increase in lead and zinc prices.
In the resistant share division were Houston Oil, Allied Chemical, Amerasia, National Acme and Phillips Morris. Inclined to slide were Marshall Field, Allied Stores, U. S. Smelting, American Tobacco, B. S. Warner Bros. and Lima Locomotive.

At mid-afternoon the French franc was up .03, a cent at 1.55, cents, and sterling was unchanged at $4.87 15-16.
Cotton declined 65 to 90 cents a bale.
Advance in Lead Price.
Coppers were aided by another lift in export rates for the red metal. St. Joseph Lead was bought at this stage $5 a ton. Zinc was also hoisted.

General Motors announced a sharp decline in February shipments compared with January. For the first two months the total was half that in the same period last year. The recession was expected because of the recent strike interruptions.
A more hopeful attitude was taken toward the transportation group partly because leading roads have been able to overcome the loss of surcharge since the first of the year and the belief that even though a payroll increase is granted higher costs may be offset by expanding traffic.

Over Week-End Developments.
The review of the magazine "Steel" pointed out that "inasmuch as mills are practically sold out at former prices to the end of March, and further in some products, while the wage advance goes into effect, March 16, producers are not effectively recuperated for their payroll expenditures."
The American Iron and Steel Institute also reported employment in this industry was up 10,000 in January, with jobs at the end of the month totaling 548,000.

The department of Commerce contributed its mite with the estimate January exports of semi-finished and finished iron and steel products increased 49 per cent in value and 56 per cent in quantity over the 1926 month.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

I THINK one reason why us human beings are so much further advanced than other kinds of animals is that we have the power of reasoning things out. There's no problem in life that we can't figure out if we just put our mind to it. That's the reason you shouldn't lose your temper when something annoys you. The blood rushes to your head and heats your brain—and it takes a cool head to reason things out. I think one of the coolest headed men I ever saw was my Uncle Squinny. He was showin' me his farm one day and as we was goin' through the stable, one of his mules hauled off and kicked him plumb across the barn. He got up and he says "Don't think nothin' of that—that mule does that to me every day." And I says "Why in the world don't you take a club to him?" and he says "Well, I thought of it once or twice, but I figured I'd better not—it might make him mean."

AS I SEE IT

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright, 1937.)

NEW YORK, March 6. THE drys have been holding their annual convention down in Florida. From their standpoint, at least, it seems to have been a successful meeting. Delegates from 40 states were present. A new crusade against wet America was planned. Some of the more optimistic of the drys, who are banded together under the official title of the Anti-saloon League, predict a return of prohibition in three years. We do not say they are wrong. Three years before prohibition went into effect, we would have laid 100 to 1 against it, and thought we were stealing the money. We merely say that we think the prediction improbable of fulfillment.

It seems wholly unlikely that we will be in another war in three years, but it could happen. Then it could happen, too, that liquor would again be voted out as a war emergency. It is not safe to set one's self up as a seer on any proposition in these times.

In any event, the prediction was probably read with some interest by one small coterie of aging men scattered over the United States, who perhaps took little stock in it, but found themselves wishing it might come true.

These aging men are the survivors of the vast posse of bootleggers, who rose to great and sudden wealth, and influence during the prohibition era. There were thousands of them in the days of the gold rush, which stretched across the '20's. Many are now pushing up the daisies. Some are in prison. Nearly all are broke. They handled millions and millions of dollars in their day. Few now have as many as two white quarters to rub together in their pants pockets.

What broke them was a curious thing. They were suckers, the rankiest kind of suckers. When the sage of the American bootleggers of the roaring '20's is written, the story of their financial downfall will be the most interesting part.

THEY "WENT FOR" everything, as the saying is. They backed Broadway shows that cost them more than they could make off a shipload of liquor. They bought racing stables that only millionaires can afford. They built hotels, and opened night clubs. They put their money in all manner of dubious projects. They gambled for high stakes. They lived in the most sumptuous style. A few—but not many—were nice drop-ins for the lads down in Wall street.

The big bootleggers literally threw their money to the wind, so fast that when it finally ran out, it took them a couple of years to realize that the spigot had run dry. Most of them were broke by the time repeal came, and those who held onto some money lost it trying to operate "legit."

THERE WAS AN ELEMENT of excitement and adventure for the bootleggers in the early days of prohibition, when most of them were young, and careless. Those were the days when they were running rum up out of the Bahamas, other down from St. Pierre, at terrific risk from the elements, and the law. The old timers can tell you regular toupee-lifters of running rum in big ships right up to the docks in New York in those days.

There were a few who found positive enjoyment in driving the speed boats loaded with booze in from rum row, beyond the 12-mile limit, with the revenue men in hot pursuit. There were others who loved the excitement of the long run down from Canada in automobiles with false bottoms, where the liquor was concealed, or sneaking boatloads past the patrols on the river between Canada and Detroit.

There was not much killing in the early days. Occasionally, a band of intrepid young gentlemen would slip alongside a ship, and take it, and the liquid cargo it carried, in old time piratical fashion.

A fellow with a little nerve could make a fair living riding a load of booze into St. Louis, or some other distant city, in those days.

Then the big combinations came along, taking in distilleries and breweries, and fighting each other for territory and the outfit with the best triggers took charge of the game.

The adventure of bootlegging passed with the appearance of the gangsters. A lot of the early bootleggers were scared out by the killings. The home product made the Canada runs unprofitable. The Bahamas and St. Pierre passed as ports of call. The individual bootlegger went out of business.

Smooth Work By Nature in Body Motion

Simple Lubrication System Prevents Pain-Causing Friction.

By Dr. M. G. Seelig

WHO has not experienced the ordeal of getting a clunder in the eye? And who, after minutes or hours of this torture, has not wondered that so tiny a particle could cause such a peck of trouble? Seen under a microscope, that clunder is as rough as a cockle burr, and the trouble is due to the fact that it interferes with the perfect smoothness that is essential to movements of the lids and eyes.

I select the homely example of a clunder in the eye, because it is an every-day experience that needs no elaboration. But there are other and more important regions in the body where smoothness of motion is a vital requisite to perfect and painless function. Let us look them over. The heart is in practically constant motion within a sac called the pericardium, against which it moves, with every beat. Anything that converts these movements from smooth gliding into rubbing causes not only severe pain, but also other symptoms of much more serious import.

Somewhat the same situation maintains in regard to the lungs which move up and down, contracting and expanding in a closed space that is limited largely by the chest walls. If the lungs rub against the walls of this space instead of gliding along them with unappreciable friction, we experience the pains and other disabilities of pleurisy.

In the abdominal cavity there are a dozen or more solid organs, each of which enjoys a greater or less degree of movement. In addition, there are about twenty-five feet of intestine that are in almost constant movement. There is, then, in this the largest cavity of the human body a veritable panorama of motion. If it be not carried out with perfect smoothness, there result not only severe pain, but also the distress incident to upsetting the function of one or more of the organs situated within the abdominal cavity. Every one knows so well what happens to him when one of his joints does not work smoothly that it need hardly be mentioned here.

But do many know how Nature attains her purpose to secure smooth action? It is accomplished in her usual bafflingly simple way. The surfaces of all structures in motion against each other are covered by a single layer of small cells, very evenly laid, so as to avoid all irregularities in contour. These cells themselves or glands specially designed for the purpose, pour out a constant supply of more or less thick fluid, which, though not oily in nature, yet nevertheless serves the same purpose as does oil between the moving parts of a machine. And unless disease or some other upsets the apparatus, we are as unconscious of the movements of our eyelids, lungs, heart, intestines and joints, as if they were not a part of us.

The ARTIST STRIKES The KEYNOTE

Picture Themes Can Be Used to Give Color Motif to Room Interiors

By MARGERY CURREY

WHO would not boast if he could say that his house had been decorated under the guidance of such great artists as Van Gogh, Renoir, Inness, Sorolla, Vermeer, Giotto and others? Yet that is a privilege any one of us may enjoy if a picture by such an artist is taken as guide in planning the color scheme of a room.

On the drawing room wall of a certain house of notable good taste hangs one of Van Gogh's luminous wheat fields sending forth into the room the golden luster of that yellow called by the master "the color beloved of God." Satin brocade draperies of the same tone are outlined by the white woodwork of window frames and moldings, and flashes of the azure blue of the brilliant sky in the picture appear in upholstery, lamp-base and gigorous decorative notes in a room furnished in extreme modern manner. The same simplicity of detail, economy of design and brilliancy of color, found both in modern furnishing (as well as in modern art) and in primitive paintings and sculpture means that these two extremes—the very modern and the very old—may be harmoniously combined. A direct, unhackneyed method of expression is common to the best in both ages.

The prevailing vogue for white in decoration—glistening white walls, white tufted draperies, white upholstery of rough texture, white pottery ornaments and vases, and demands the refreshing accent and high relief of a picture or so in gayest light colors. Then truly is it a white room, the contrast of smaller pictures. The carpet matches the rain-washed green of the picture, and the same color is repeated in the velvet sofa and upholstered chair. There are two or three ornaments of white pottery, with an occasional accent of black, and walls of warm gray. Van Gogh the painter could not have been any more present as dictator of the decorative harmonies and the atmosphere of the room. The interest and variety of the pictures, with their glowing warmth of color, soften the crispness and polish of the modern furniture, with its severe wide surfaces.

Nor need the limitations of consistency prevent the combination of classic pictures with modern furniture, or of modern pictures with period furniture. A most beautiful and most modern room has been planned around that loveliest of pictures, Giotto's "St. Francis Preaching to the Birds," painted more than 600 years ago. Its fragile gray-blue is repeated in a single tall vase of delicate blue crystal standing on the narrow mantelpiece. The rest of the room is modern in every detail, seems to be the setting for this superb work of art—flat and self striped gray walls, gray painted cabinets and woodwork, yellow satin draperies and upholstery, and dark linoleum floor.

Primitive pictures, by early painters, of Italy and other countries, are admirably used as harmonious decorative notes in a room furnished in extreme modern manner. The same simplicity of detail, economy of design and brilliancy of color, found both in modern furnishing (as well as in modern art) and in primitive paintings and sculpture means that these two extremes—the very modern and the very old—may be harmoniously combined. done in the strong reddish pinks and orange-yellows of that painter, who loved his hearty countrymen, and in both decorative keynote and ray entertainment in the studio.

Fine color reproductions of great paintings, available in various sizes, have put most of the best known pictures within the reach of all; these reproductions have, according to their size, the same decorative value as their originals, and may be framed and placed similarly.

Often one has a room in the house that does not demand a definite color scheme, or even any particular atmosphere or significance. But any room is entitled to be interesting. Here is a writer's workroom, for instance, long and narrow, with a bookcase along one side and great decorative possibilities there are in the arrangement of shelves, especially if the divisions and compartments are well planned: At one end a sunny window, and opposite the bookcase, a long blank wall above the work table and floor. What an opportunity to turn that blank wall into a little gallery of thrilling interest! On such a space it is quite allowable to break several of the rules for orthodox grouping of pictures—indeed to break every rule but those of good taste and interest.

In the dining room it is the walls that must carry most of the decorative burden between the hours of feasting; they may set the key of dignity, or of merriment, or they may have pictures of merely decorative value. But they should never be spiritless. Ancestral portraits (by purchase or inheritance) are most appropriate as guardians of the silver service on the sideboard beneath and as symbols of family integrity. Pictures that are highly decorative in color and style are appropriate here, if they are such that they do not become wearisome in their insistence. Certain brilliant and beautiful flower pictures could never be anything but a delight in the dining room. Among these are Renoir's flower paintings, and the paintings of Odilon Redon, Van Gogh, Gauguin and many others.

In the library, where the rows of books supply all the needed color on the walls, etchings are appropriate, their fine sepia lines in satisfying contrast to the rich tapestried effect of the bookshelves. A love of fine etchings indicates the same cultured taste as does the love of books. Original etchings by contemporary artists of note are within the means of almost everyone. A portrait, or fine landscape, or ship scene makes an effective overmantel picture as a central point of interest in the library.

There is one part of the house where pictures in orderly series seem almost a requirement: the wall along the stairway, where etchings, or bird or flower prints, or Japanese prints, are especially effective if placed stepwise, following the architectural line of the stair. Such prints as these, exquisite in workmanship and fine in pictorial detail, demand close scrutiny, and to place them thus offers opportunity for such enjoyment.

It is almost an imperative to discuss decorative effects of the bedroom, another personal room. For here the occupant's individual interests are so decidedly expressed as usually to disregard purely decorative considerations—airplanes, butterflies, animals, circus scenes, birds, sports, maps, travel pictures, even one's own sketches (beloved records of that most delightful of hobbies). Let the decorative value take care of itself. It is the spirit of the room, in this case, that usually determines the pictures, rather than otherwise. However, the attractive bedrooms we see in exhibition houses, with their well-harmonized furnishings and pictures, show the satisfaction of establishing the decorative integrity based on the dominant picture in the room.

In the child's room, too, the decorative significance of pictures is of less importance than the interest of the pictures themselves to the little occupant. The understanding parent will give the child an opportunity to choose his pictures. Unexpected and unaccountable as that choice may sometimes be, it will never be colorless.

Replacement Of Damaged Loaned Items

One Should Always Be Chary of Lending Anything of Irreplaceable Value.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: FRIEND offered to lend me a very old and beautiful bowl, which I was to have used for salad at a buffet supper. I was delighted and took the bowl home. I washed it myself and carefully, in hot water and did not bump it. So imagine my dismay when it simply broke in two pieces. The accident spoiled my fun at the party. I must do something now about explaining to my friend and perhaps replacing the bowl with the best substitute I can. I won't be able to duplicate it, and even if I could I would not be able to afford anything like it. Is there something I could do to soften the blow,

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a dishwasher blonde and very tall for my age, 13 years, 5 ft. 3 inches. Tell me what kind of clothes I should wear and how should I wear my hair?

Other girls my age pick their eyebrows. They ask me why I don't pick mine; they think it right for girls my age to pick their eyebrows. Please tell me if I am wrong. I have blue eyes.

HELEN.

Any pretty clothes suitable to other young girls your age will be right for you. Avoid stripes and anything which takes an up and down line. Wear your hair in a fluffy bob, but not high on top of the head.

I should not recommend to you the plucked eyebrow. Let your eyebrows alone, unless they grow together straight across your nose, then have someone who knows how to do it, thin them at this place.

If girls who make a practice of this plucking the eyebrows only knew how funny some of them look, they certainly would stop. Some of them have a surprised, silly look that would make anybody laugh; some look startled and scared. Some of the movie people look as if their eyebrows have moved up into the middle of their foreheads.

Judging from an article in one of the best fashion magazines, the "picked" eyebrow is going out. And, at anytime, it should have been left to skilled professionals to study the right line and to perform the operation.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

JUST want to say a few words about what I think of those who make fun of country people. This also goes for the one who talks about "hoosiers." I think it more jealousy than anything else.

I went through this, because I was raised in the country and attended high school in the city. I was called a farmer and "hayseed" all my four years of high school. The reason a banker wasn't a "hayseed" was because he didn't plant the seed; but he saw the consequences of it and profited by it.

Many of our great men, such as Will Rogers and some of our United States Senators and Congressmen, came from the country.

I have been in many of our cities and I have found more charming young women (not of the liquor and cigarette-smoking type) in the country. I love the country for there all of us live closer to God and it is there we find it nearer to what he made it in the beginning.

So let's join hands and glory in the golden wheat fields, the handsome patch of hollyhocks, the hills covered in white and pink and glorious red! And we must care for the horses and mules, the sheep, the chickens and the pigs which are friends of mankind and faithful helpers.

And while we are not together in the country let us not forget to smile and give thanks for the three good meals a day.

FROM THE COUNTRY.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you please ask the one who offered "Science and Health" to let me have the book. I will be very grateful for your kindness. MRS. K. A.

Those that have been offered have been sent out. But if you will go to your nearest Christian Science Church and inquire there for the Literature Distribution Committee, or to the nearest Christian Science reading room and ask, you may find that they have extra copies which some one has given for distribution.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

YOUR letter received in this morning's mail. Thanks to you, my dear, for the loving interest you have taken in me. What into me and joy you have brought into my life in the past three weeks I cannot begin to express.

I received the wheel chair from Mrs. S. and my friend, Mrs. R., about whom I have written you, gave me enough material to put a new back and seat in it. This I made myself; so I am quite proud of my new runabout. With the help of it, I am gradually getting my house cleaned up.

I had two letters from the lady in Lemay, Mo., and two from the lady on Utah street, answered all their letters. How many things could be done for all shut-ins, Mrs. Carr; so much joy and sunshine brought to their lives, if there were more people in the world like you.

And I regret to say, that there are hundreds on relief who are perfectly able to take care of themselves. They should have pride in caring for themselves and not depending upon the public to provide it, when others are so in need.

My faith has carried me through much trouble and sickness and I am happy. Thank you for everything. A. P.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Analysis of International Bridge Hand

An Iranian Correspondent
Seeks a Solution for Controversial Play.

By Ely Culbertson

CERTAINLY no other game or sport has quite the international flavor of contract. Here is a letter just received from far-off Teheran, Iran. Apparently, whether the cards are dealt in a modernistic American clubroom or in a Persian garden, the problems remain the same.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: You probably know that here in Teheran a rather good game of bridge is played. A few days ago an interesting hand was dealt in a friendly rubber game in which I played with Count A. de Monteforte, attache of the legation of Denmark, against Commandante Bigi, naval attache of Italy, and Kenan Gokart, secretary of the embassy of Turkey.

North, dealer.

The bidding:
North 2 spades East 3 hearts South 4 hearts West 4 hearts

"Then 10 of hearts was led and, as the hearts were well divided, there was no problem in playing, as after the fourth trick the cards could be laid down. A great discussion followed, however, and we decided to submit these questions to you.

"1. What is the correct bidding and the best final contract?
"2. If the final contract is seven no trump, what discards are to be made from the dummy if a heart or club is led? You will note that dummy is squeezed on the first trick.

"Yours very truly,
"LE BARON FRANCOIS KORN-FELD."

THE mere fact that my correspondent's leap to seven no trump was abrupt is not per se an indictment of the bid. Regardless of system, when North opens the bidding with a forcing two bid, South, with four-plus honor tricks and what appears to be eight playing tricks, should not be satisfied with less than a grand slam.

At first glance it appears that if the bidding proceeds more conventionally the seven no trump final contract which, due to the lack of communication from one hand to the other, was definitely bad, should be avoided, but in fairness to South I am not at all certain that this could be done in actual play. Suppose North did begin properly with a forcing two bid on his longer suit. The bidding would then proceed as follows:

NORTH—2 diamonds, 2 spades, 3 spades, 5 no trump.
SOUTH—2 hearts, 3 hearts, 4 no trump.

And now, at this stage, South would have to be something of a clairvoyant as well as a poor bridge player to bid anything except seven no trump. From South's viewpoint it is incredible that he will be unable to enter his own hand with either a heart or a club, and no trump appears a safer contract than any suit, since the result will not necessarily depend on the favorable break of one chosen trump suit.

Now as to the proper discard from the dummy when West opens with a heart: there is a greater chance that the spade suit, which misses only the jack and four small cards, will be solid than that the longer diamond combination will come home without the loss of a trick. Spades, in fact, offer approximately a two to one chance of solidity, whereas the chance for dropping the diamond queen is only even.

Obviously West been lucky enough to guess a spade or a diamond opening lead the slam would have been defeated.

WHY
GROW OLD?

By Josephine Lowman

TODAY'S combination exercises: When you do the following exercise, you can be sure you are rolling away your troubles. Lie on your back. Cross your arms over your chest. Keep your legs straight. Lift your head, chest and legs off the floor as you roll all the way to your left side. Your weight will fall on the hips. Now get a flying start and roll over onto the right side. Continue rolling from side to side. Do this on the hard floor (without benefit of rug). You roll the fat away on back and also reduce the tummy.

When giving a pie or cake to a bazaar or fair, place it on a large-sized picnic plate, cover with a fancy paper doily. Then you will not have to worry about the plate being returned.

Winner of Award as Best Motion Picture Actor of 1936, He Re- fuses to Be "Typed" and Changes Looks for Almost Every Story.

By H. H. NIEMEYER

COOLIE... HE
ADAPTED HIS MOOD
TO HIS CHINESE FACE IN "THE GOOD EARTH"

A MEXICAN GAMBLER... NEEDED ONLY A LITTLE MAKE-UP.

HOLLYWOOD, March 4. YOU'll be seeing Paul Muni as a Chinaman in that very remarkable picture, "The Good Earth," before very long. Maybe you've already seen him and noted the fact that he is smooth shaven. He does wear a long pigtail and funny Chinese clothes but his lack of a beard is somewhat unusual for Mr. Muni has gone in for whiskers in a rather big way lately and the flowing chin adornments have played an important part in his life.

Maybe the beard had something to do with Muni's being declared "The Best Screen Actor of 1936" by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences just the other night. The much coveted award came to him for his work in "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

He wore a set, not of his own raising, at the age of 11 when he played old men in his parents' Yiddish Art theater. And now 28 years after he first appeared with his beard on, he's wearing another. He grew it himself, and it's a fine, luxurious one. It is part of his makeup for "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

Muni doesn't always hide himself behind whiskers. He didn't in his first successful picture, "Scarface." Nor, as said before, does he in "The Good Earth." In this latter picture he plays a Chinese and doesn't often see Orientals with beards. At least, not one of our Chinese laundrymen had whiskers.

Mr. Muni says he felt a little bit naked going through this role, and was more at home growing the beard for Zola. But no matter how he felt he made a grand Chinaman. Muni knows how to throw himself into a role, whiskers or no whiskers.

There are a good many actors in Hollywood who get along right well by playing themselves. Muni isn't one of them. His early training in the Yiddish Art theater left its mark on him and he's gone through life seeking to interpret the lives of other men. He's completely happy, when, dolled up as a Chinese or a Louis Pasteur or an Emile Zola, he moves around a motion picture set. In one picture he tried to play seven parts at once. That was "Seven Faces" and though the result wasn't completely successful, it was interesting.

But the fact remains that Muni is a man of many parts and many faces. Sometimes we suspect that he takes himself a little too seriously. Once, when "The Good Earth" was being filmed, we spoke to him on the set, and he frowned at us. He apologized later—told us that we had shattered his mood. When we spoke to him, he wasn't Muni, he was Chang, or Ching, or something, the simple Chinese farmer and we brought him back to reality. We forgave him for this—all good actors, and bad ones, too, take themselves seriously. They wouldn't be actors if they didn't.

MUNI grew up in the theater. His father was an actor. His mother was an actress. Born in Vienna September 22, 1897, Muni cut his teeth on bad drops, rubber daggers, and old play manuscripts. He was just a sprout when his parents brought him to New York and put him in public schools there. They couldn't use him in work for Warner Bros., he lists "The Valiant" as one of his better pictures. He lists "Seven Faces" as his worst. Mrs. Muni shares this opinion. She is a pretty good judge because she used to be an actress too. As Bella Finkle she played opposite Paul in "Four Walls" on the stage. He fell in love with her and they were married.

As we pointed out before, Muni is not his real name. Mrs. Muni says he was born Mitchell or Michael Weissfreud and that his family dubbed him Muni. That is a Yiddish pet name similar to "baby" or "precious." His biographical questionnaire, however, lists his real name as Muni Weissfreud. We prefer to accept Mrs. Muni's explanation.

While we are on the subject of Mrs. Muni we might as well point out that she is an important factor in his life. She understands her husband and so manages things that their world revolves around Paul. She doesn't buy his clothes or his neckties, but she does pass on the parts he is to play and handles his business. And when his pictures are in production she sits on the set and watches his every move. If she likes a scene, she nods her head. If she doesn't, she shows her disapproval by an imperceptible shake, and it is taken over. Muni's directors have grown accustomed to this and make no complaints. Even William Dieterle, who directed "Pasteur" and who is directing "Zola" doesn't protest. In a measure, this is remarkable, for Dieterle isn't one to let other people run things. He has pretty definite ideas on the subject of acting, having been an actor himself, and it usually galls him to have outsiders putting in their oars.

LIKE all tragedians—and Muni grew up on a diet of darkness—he likes to think of himself as capable of playing fine light comedy. Planned down, he will tell you that he has a very light side and will cite instances of little quips and jests and practical jokes that have happened at home. One time, he will tell you, he jumped into the swimming pool with his clothes on—just for the laugh. But it is our observation that Muni isn't at his best as a comedian. "Hi Nellie" proved it to us. He can be whimsical, he can add a touch of lightness to a heavy part, but he can't be downright funny.

One of Hollywood's most grievous sins is "typing." The boys who make the pictures, take an actress like Zasu Pitts or Alice Brady and Muni filled out when he went to when they get through with them.

they can do but one thing. Muni came to the film village with his eyes open and managed to escape, as his worst. Mrs. Muni shares this opinion. He can be whimsical, he can add a touch of lightness to a heavy part, but he can't be downright funny.

One of Hollywood's most grievous sins is "typing." The boys who make the pictures, take an actress like Zasu Pitts or Alice Brady and Muni filled out when he went to when they get through with them.

they can do but one thing. Muni came to the film village with his eyes open and managed to escape, as his worst. Mrs. Muni shares this opinion. She is a pretty good judge because she used to be an actress too. As Bella Finkle she played opposite Paul in "Four Walls" on the stage. He fell in love with her and they were married.

As we pointed out before, Muni is not his real name. Mrs. Muni says he was born Mitchell or Michael Weissfreud and that his family dubbed him Muni. That is a Yiddish pet name similar to "baby" or "precious." His biographical questionnaire, however, lists his real name as Muni Weissfreud. We prefer to accept Mrs. Muni's explanation.

While we are on the subject of Mrs. Muni we might as well point out that she is an important factor in his life. She understands her husband and so manages things that their world revolves around Paul. She doesn't buy his clothes or his neckties, but she does pass on the parts he is to play and handles his business. And when his pictures are in production she sits on the set and watches his every move. If she likes a scene, she nods her head. If she doesn't, she shows her disapproval by an imperceptible shake, and it is taken over. Muni's directors have grown accustomed to this and make no complaints. Even William Dieterle, who directed "Pasteur" and who is directing "Zola" doesn't protest. In a measure, this is remarkable, for Dieterle isn't one to let other people run things. He has pretty definite ideas on the subject of acting, having been an actor himself, and it usually galls him to have outsiders putting in their oars.

LIKE all tragedians—and Muni grew up on a diet of darkness—he likes to think of himself as capable of playing fine light comedy. Planned down, he will tell you that he has a very light side and will cite instances of little quips and jests and practical jokes that have happened at home. One time, he will tell you, he jumped into the swimming pool with his clothes on—just for the laugh. But it is our observation that Muni isn't at his best as a comedian. "Hi Nellie" proved it to us. He can be whimsical, he can add a touch of lightness to a heavy part, but he can't be downright funny.

And the height of something or other is a Senate United States Senator voting to forcibly retire Supreme Court judges at the age of 70.

As a matter of fact, feeling among the oldsters in the Senate is so bitter that many of them have already locked wheel-chairs in the controversy.

If the inclination is strong enough, we may be able to get to a point where we turn over the Government to youth. The Supreme Court members would then wear raccoon coats and sit with their feet on the bench.

ONE night Willie took a chance and snagged a five-spot from a peep. "Gee, what luck! Try to fish me out a buck," — Ben Savage.

Instead of abandoning checks and balances by packing the Supreme Court, why not let the all laws rubber stamped with approval by the Postoffice Department? They have marvelous machines now that are run by electricity.

After all these years, the Earl of Lonsdale tells the world. Maybe he's just getting his bearings.

Tennessee's 9-year-old bride is getting offers to go on the stage and her 22-year-old husband has engaged an attorney to advise her. It may prove more profitable in Tennessee to raise brides than to raise tobacco.

Of course, the real surprise will be when a Tennessee woman gets married to a 9-year-old husband.

Mimi, at Martha's Funeral and Later With Cliff, Feels That Ella Is to Blame, but That Martha Really Won.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE.

SOFT strains of an organ in the little chapel and the sweet scent of roses, and through the stained glass windows gold and crimson darts of light fell on the thick dark rug and on edges of some of the carved pews. A minister was speaking, his voice just audible above the organ—a fine deep sincere voice.

Beside him, beside his black frocked body, beside his young intense face was a gray box and on top of the gray box heaps of flowers, some of them roses, some of them lilies and one of a bouquet of larkspur, and delphinium, blue in the misty light that rose from the casket.

Back of the gray box and the minister was an altar and some candles were burning there, their flames weaving this way, that way in the little draft that came through the chapel.

Mimi was glad it was a beautiful chapel, she was glad that it was a peaceful one. She hoped that wherever she was Martha could see it, see the young man who was speaking, hear the deep music of his voice, hear the slow lovely music of the organ, see the slanted light come through the windows, and smell the perfume of the flowers.

The chapel was small but it was not crowded. There were only a dozen or so people in its pews. Miss Fielding from the office, several other girls including Ruth, who was sitting beside Miss Fielding. Down in front near the gray box, the woman Mimi had seen day before yesterday coming out of Martha's hospital room—her sister, Beulah. Mrs. Butcher was a man and two children.

Mimi and Cliff were there, too. Cliff sitting straight and tense, looking at the gray box, on his forehead little beads of perspiration gathering.

So few persons came to say good bye to Martha—the only sister she had, the only relative, her office companions who hadn't been really companions, her boss, Miss Fielding, and Cliff.

Martha so friendly in life, still friendly in death. Mimi didn't look at Cliff, and he didn't look at her. She felt strange here, stranger than she had felt up in Martha's room pleading with Martha, stranger than she had felt at the hospital gazing down at Martha's dying face, seeing Martha's lips fighting to speak.

"I see by the papers where one of the girls at the company committed suicide," she could hear Ella say as she had said the night Martha died. She could hear the words ring through the little chapel, above the music of the organ, above the staid music of the minister's voice. She could see Ella on the couch as she said the words that stabbed at the Gray living room much as they were stabbing at the chapel now. Ella lifting her eyes from a dress she was making for Alice Ann, looking first at Mimi, then at Cliff. "I see by the papers."

All of them, tense after the words.

the chapel before the others, before the organ finished playing. "I'm not going back to the office," he said when they were in his car pulling away. "Any place special you want me to drop you?"

"No place." They drove on for a while in silence. "She wrote me a letter last week, Mimi, and I burned it up. I didn't answer it."

"Don't talk about her if it hurts you, Cliff."

"But I want to. It's all wrong, so awfully wrong. I must have been crazy."

Not you, Cliff. Only Ella. She was the one who was crazy, Mimi wanted to say. However, she said nothing. If she had said that, she would have been understood. Because of Ella, Martha had to die. Because of Ella, the blindness of men, the blindness of women.

"It's all so strange. When I look back now, I can't imagine why I was such a fool."

A fool because you caught Martha's love when she wanted you to catch it, when it made her so happy for you to have it, happy for you to have the first time in her life? No, Cliff, you weren't a fool, perhaps you were a wise man, who knows. But Mimi didn't say that, either. It was useless, useless as telling Cliff that Ella was the cause of Martha's death.

Mimi was remembering something else, the tiny smile she had played around Ella's lips when she turned back to the blue and gray wool dress of a twisted smile, foreign to Ella's usual smile. It had hurt, stabbed as much as the words she had spoken. Cliff hadn't seen the smile, because after the words rocked through the room, he had risen from his chair and walked into the kitchen. But Mimi and Doug had seen the smile, had seen it deepen and deepen, had seen it pass into Ella's blue eyes.

ELLA so sure of herself! So triumphant! "Ella's been mighty nice through all this," Cliff went on lamely. "Never said a word about it, except the other night when you were with us."

"Never mentioned it since, not a word. Never mentioned her name, and she knows, because I told her—well, guess I told you about that. But it's white of Ella."

Yes, Clifford Gray, white of Ella. Kind of her when she's standing with you and Martha is dead because she loved you, and because of Ella. White of Ella. What did you expect her to do? Grow? Neither did Mimi utter those words, but they were there within her, and her mind was speaking them, and it seemed to her that they were audible some place because she could hear them so plainly—as plainly as in the church she had heard Ella's voice. Ella could smile, she could afford to be forgiving; there was nothing for her to lose by being forgiving, and everything to gain. She could sit and sew and smile her satisfied, triumphant, sure smile.

"When I think back now, I know I never loved her very hard for him to say. 'I mean, it was just one of those things that happened. I was angry at Ella, I was disgusted at everything, I turned to Martha and she gave me advice. I used to feel so comfortable with Martha—I've never felt so comfortable with anyone else—not even Ella.'"

"Because she was surrounding you with her love, because her love was

The Introvert And Extrovert Types of Men

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"HERE is how I figure it," writes a young man. "A lot of people are still cavemen, who cringe in their caves. They seldom see the bright sunlight of life, except briefly now and then."

"To the introvert the world is a fearful place where enemies are ready to devour him. He makes timid, periodic raids into it in an animal-like search for food. Then back to his mental cave."

"Actually, he never comes out of his cave. His energies are turned inward upon himself, and he is repelled from the active life of the world about him. He denies life, endures or resists it."

"The extrovert accepts life, accepts it as a fight in which to amass some of its spoils to drag back to his cave. He has more courage than fear, as the introvert has more fear than courage."

"Each of us tends toward one of these types of personality, and it does not take long for a keen eye to detect to which we belong. We give it away by word, gesture, and the tone of our voice."

"Of course, we form a fine theory to explain it to the satisfaction of our smug little egos, making life a dream or a fight to suit ourselves. Is it any wonder that life is a hectic thing?"

But that is not the whole story. If we take time and have the patience to attain poise, balance and understanding, we know that life is neither dreaming nor fighting—but a growth of the spirit."

We come out of our cave, with its dim light and dampness, and welcome life as an adventure in which it is a joy to have part. We do not carry a chip on our shoulder or a veil over our eyes."

Shut up in a cave of self-questioning and self-fear, we are tortured; out in the sunlight we are happy and free. Plato talked about the same cave ages ago, and about the wise way of getting out."

Happy is the man who keeps a balance of the introvert and the extrovert—to use the modern jargon—he can join harmoniously in the chorus of life, escaping not from life, but deeper into it.

never know what Martha's love could have done for you and your life. She's gone now, and her love is gone." — But as Mimi said these words she had a feeling that she was wrong, that Martha's love wasn't gone, that it was still hovering around Cliff, holding him, that it would always be with him in some mysterious way, and that Ella would never be able to push it away.

ON BROADWAY
By Walter Winchell

Notes of a New Yorker.

Manhattan Symphony of Silence: The quiet that suddenly settles over a first-night audience as the asbestos goes up. . . . The reading room of the 42nd Street Library. . . . When the presses come to a stop in any New York pressroom. . . . When the curtain comes down on a flop show. . . . The East River waterfront at midnight. . . . Fifth Avenue between 60th and 106th streets between 4 and 6 a. m. except for the click that goes with the switching of the traffic bulbs. . . . The top floor of a Greenwich Village walk-up apartment, except for the turning of magazine or book pages. . . . The silence of any two people in most apartments—as footsteps are heard in the hall.

Overheard Nocturne: He is the type who save $50 every year for a holiday in New York. . . . This year, during the fourth day of his vacation, he rented a set of tails and collapsible topper and proceeded to get tight. . . . Strolling along Park Avenue between 40th and 50th streets he found himself talking to the answer to any bachelor's dream. . . . He filled her with fables of his wealth and power and his pranks as a playboy. . . . Her presence ignited his desire to fall in love, and sure enough, he did. . . . She confided that she was looking for something hard to find. . . . Later he took her home and was startled when she paused at a Park Avenue address. . . . The big blow followed. . . . She confessed that she was terribly fond of him. . . . But she couldn't see him again. . . . Because, she said, he was just what she was running from. She wanted a plain man, who had to work for a living!

And it was Mark Twain, one of the better word-jugglers, who once said that a "drydock" was a very thirsty physician.

Street Scene: 45th street and the Grand Canyon. Two youthful actors. . . . Discussing their reasons for shelving the stage and working for an honest living. . . . The first proved to the second that their futures were never assured. . . . And, besides, the chances were one in 10,000 of reaching the heights. . . . The second pointed out that getting to the top didn't mean staying there and, furthermore, neither of them was star stuff. . . . And so they debated the pros and cons for some time, and both were convinced that the best thing was to look for other jobs from then on. . . . Just as they started to go from out of the nowhere stepped a third actor, who excitedly explained that a well-known producer was seeing people to cast a new play—and what were they waiting for? . . . The trio hastened to the showman's office a block away. . . . And didn't even pause to see why a great crowd collected near an ambulance.

Among other depressing items you encounter in a day (when you haven't a flicker to do—no, the day drags!) is this one. . . . The man it concerns, they tell you, practically put California on its feet. . . . It was he whose banking idea clicked so powerfully that he enriched many others. . . . He once had 25 million dollars himself. . . . His average donation to California charities and others amounted to $45,000 a year. . . . He gave generously for 20 years. . . . Then came the crash. . . . He lost his banks, legally, of course—and then went broke. . . . Today he is driving an old truck in Los Angeles. . . . His grown daughter is an "extra" for the studio her pop's going started!

Jerry Cooper pledges that this is a new one. . . . At any rate he was breaking a bagel with Jay Freeman at the Paradise when a conceited actor began gabbling about his importance to the theater. . . . "Well," said Jay, "I don't know about you, Jerry, but I feel like eating. I'm gonna have some ham and eggs. What are you gonna have?" . . . Cooper gave the blabbing phoney a "look" and said: "I'll have him and eggs!"

The "rib" is the big idea in Hollywood. . . . New Yorkers wearied of the "rib" years ago. . . . Not all New Yorkers—but many. . . . The "rib" is the meanest form of practical joke. . . . "I hear you're going to be fired after your next picture. They say you are lousy!" . . . Or: "You better square yourself with sound—his the big power out here. He's heard you've been sipping him." . . . If you have any brains you wave such people away and forget them. . . . But the bravest people and the brainiest usually "fall" hard for the rib in the movie sector. . . . Because nearly everyone is a power or is close to a power. . . . So, someone, it appears, cracks your career or job or friendship—and so you worry about it.
